Map Canvass of Rural Areas To Boost Scrap Drive Here

Every House To Be Visited in Effort To Increase Scrap Metal Collections in County.

A committee of seven will set up an organization to make a house-to-house canvass of the rural areas of Marion county in the farm scrap to get under way soon

The committee consists of D. T. Mills, county superintendent of schools, C. P. Harper, AAA chairman for Marion county, Arthur Smith, county farm agent, Fred Dutt, Marion county chairman for the implement dealers' scrap drive, and A. J. Loudenslager. Also serving as members are Clyde C. Caldwell and George Alber, co-chairmen of the Marion county salvage committee.

This group met yesterday at Hotel Marion and decided to leave the preliminary phases of the drive in the hands of Supt Mills and Farm Agent Smith, since both have organizations through which virtually every Marion county farm can be contacted.

Meeting Monday

Supt. Mills has planned a meeting with his principals Monday night, and following that meeting will confer with Mr. Smith to map a joint countywide canvass to learn where the farm scrap material is located, how much there is and what method would be best to bring it into war industrial channels.

These men are expected to report back to the salvage committee in the near future with recommendations, and from their suggestions the countywide drive plans will be set up

Meanwhile, the county salvage committee considered staging a campaign in connection with the farm drive to gather scrap materials in the business district of Marion if a preliminary study indicates it would be sufficiently productive A number of business places have reported they have substantial accumulations of scrap iron and other metals on hand.

More Marion Drives

Also, the committee announced there will be more citywide scrap metal drives to contact Marion homes. They made this announcement to explain the committee's unwillingness now to send trucks after small quantities of scrap metal at Marion homes A number of persons have called the committee, asking that a truck pick up quantities of 70 to 100 pounds of scrap metal While these are wanted, the committee does not have trucks at its disposal that it can send on such individual calls, the co-chairmen pointed out. They urged Marion residents who have small amounts of scrap metal to keep the metal until another citywide drive is held or to take it to the salvage pile on the city parking lot.

COST CONTROL NEARER ACTION

Senate and House Committees Approve Bills Authorizing Authority.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—President Roosevelt's demand for prompt stabilization of living costs was a step closer to fulfillment today with both senate and house committees approving bills to grant him unprecedented authority to control wages, salaries and farm prices.

The two measures, scheduled for congressional action next week, differed somewhat in their bestowal of authority to the President. But both carried out administration wishes in general. Both committees rejected farm bloc demands for a new and higher formula for parity raising the ceilings for farm products

Legislation approved by the senate banking committee yesterday fixed a Nov. 1 deadline for Mr. Roosevelt to exercise the proposed powers to control the cost of living.

The house banking committee, almost simultaneously, approved a similar bill but with the provision adopted by the war labor board in the little steel case forbidding a wage or salary increase to an employe earning 15 per cent more than on Jan. 1, 1941—an amount equivalent to the rise in living costs since that date.

Authorizes Action

As the measure came out of the banking committee with a unanimous vote, it would authorize and direct the President to issue a general order on or before Nov. 1 stabilizing prices, wages and salaries at Sept. 15 levels, as far as practical.

The Nov. 1 date, inserted on motion of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) over the objections of Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky), was re-

Prospect Banquet Given in Honor of Fireboat Maker

Special to The Star

PROSPECT, O., Sept. 19 — Keenan Hanley, the Prospect man whose construction of fireboats for the U. S. coast guard has transformed this community into a beehive of war manufacturing, and his wife were honored last night at a banquet given by the Prospect Commercial club.

About 80 Prospect business men and guests, including the men of Mr Hanley's organization, attended the party, given at Dale's restaurant.

Among those present were Lt. F. M Myers, head of the coast guard men here, who in his talk after dinner on the use to which the fireboats will be put, spoke of the number now being built and said "we hope that there may be more."

Origin of Pump

Mr. Hanley in his talk paid tribute to S. L "Uncle Vane" Wottring, one of the members of the original Prospect Fire Engine Co., and introduced Mr. Wottring. The company marked the birth of the deluge pump, Mr. Hanley said, and a boat operating one of the pumps first came into the news when it was put on duty at the Cincinnati flood. He traced the development of the boat to the centridrive fire tug now being manufactured for the coast guard. He thanked Prospect community for its cooperation.

Lieutenant Myers told the crowd that the boats will go all over the country where shipping is of great value. He said that the coast guard was not a large organization and that in time of war it is a part of the navy.

H. C. Secrest, superintendent of the Prospect school, presided as toastmaster.

Presentations Made

Following the invocation by Rev. Dickerson, retired minister, Samuel Almendinger, president of the club, presented Mr. Hanley with a five-year honorary membership in the club. Mrs. Hanley was presented a corsage.

Mr. Hanley introduced members of his organization and Mrs Hanley expressed her thanks for the recognition banquet.

Accordion selections were played by Alice Anson and Loma Lauer. After the introduction of committees, everyone stood and sang "God Bless America," and gave the pledge of allegiance.

Draped flags and bouquets of flowers decorated the room. Place cards were free hand pencil sketches of the Hanley fire boat, drawn by Ed Griffith. There were lager drawings at Mr. and Mrs. Hanley's places, before which was a three-tiered cake decorated with an anchor made of icing and the words, "Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Hanley."

WHEEL, TIRE STOLEN

A 5:50 x-17 tire and a Chevrolet wire wheel were stolen last night from a car owned by S. J. Beckel of 217 North Greenwood street and parked in the city parking lot. According to police records, the theft was made by persons riding in an old Chevrolet or Ford coach.

New War Plant Hospital Opened

ONE OF THE 12-BED WARDS AT WAR PLANT HOSPITAL

VIEW OF OPERATING ROOM

DR. H. S. WENDORF

Equipment Includes 24 Beds and Facilities for Major Surgery.

The Scioto Ordnance Plant hospital swung into action this week when Dr. H. S. Wendorf, the plant's physician and surgeon, and his assistants moved into the west half of the combined hospital-employment-service department building of the U. S. Rubber Co.

The roomy building is in the administration area of the war plant and the hospital facilities are close not only to the administrative headquarters but to the large dormitories that will house hundreds of operating workers. Prior to this week Dr. Wendorf and his assistants made their headquarters in a farmhouse on the plant site that was converted into a field hospital.

Much of the new hospital's equipment is already installed and more is arriving daily. When installation of equipment is completed, it will be prepared to handle a wide range of medical cases, from major surgery to treatments of cuts and scratches. It also will be prepared to handle speedily the physical examinations workers must take.

Two Wards Equipped

Two 12-bed wards, equipped with hospital-type beds and with each bed separated from the others by screens, are provided at the south end of the hospital wing. One ward is for women, the other for men. A chair is provided at each bedside and each bed has its own nurse-call signal switch.

Nearby is one private hospital room, and next to it is the doctors' wash room. The operating room, spotless and well equipped, can handle almost any type of surgery although, whenever possible, major operations will be turned over to the patient's family physician for surgery and care elsewhere excepting in emergencies.

First Aid Room

A large room is equipped for first aid. It contains cases for instruments, a supply of drugs and medicines, reclining chairs for patients receiving treatment and a plentiful supply of bandaging materials.

Another room is equipped for physio-therapy and is equipped with an infra-red heat lamp, ultra-violet ray lamps and a diathermy fever machine.

At the north end of the wing is the nurses' lounge and lockers and the diet kitchen which will be equipped with an electric steam table, on wheels that will be transported between the hospital and the plant cafeteria by truck. Another room houses X-ray equipment.

Ten small offices are equipped for use in conducting physical examinations of applicants for employment. Each room has a desk and sufficient equipment to check height, weight, blood pressure and to take a blood sample. The rows of physical examination rooms are separated, one for

Allied Bombers Keep Up Attack on Japanese Bases

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS AUSTRALIA, Sept. 19—For the second successive day flying fortresses and other allied aircraft yesterday blasted Japanese bases in New Guinea and New Britain from which supplies and reinforcements are sent to enemy forces now being held in check by Australian troops 32 airplane miles from Port Moresby.

Flying Fortresses made an "harassing night raid" in Rabaul, New Britain also an important Japanese base in the Solomon islands and attacked fires visible for 50 miles an allied communique reported. Salamaua, Lae and Buna in New Guinea also were attacked

The most immediate supply point to the Japanese now trying to push down the south side of the Owen Stanley range toward the allied base at Port Moresby is at Buna on the northeast New Guinea coast Allied fighters swooped down on Japanese transport and supply facilities there, too

A reconnaissance unit, surveying the effect of Thursday's attack on the port, reported 27 burned barges on the beach,

Fighting on the road to Port Moresby yesterday was described in the communique as minor and apparently as still centered in the vicinity of the village of Isurava on the south side of the range The action presumably was limited to patrol skirmishes in difficult terrain

A spokesman disclosed today that organized resistance to the Japanese is continuing on the island of Timor northwest of Darwin, Australia A small force of Australians has held out there against bitter Japanese efforts to dislodge and destroy it, the spokesman said.

LEGION OPENS CONVENTION

Knox and McNutt Speak as World War Vets Gather in Kansas City.

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 19—The American Legion looked a bit lost today—it opened its national convention without all the hoorahs of the bygone days.

A solemn atmosphere hung over the convention hall, much to the surprise of some Legionnaires themselves.

They had read that no one was expected to show up except the 1,500 delegates but their fear they would miss something 14,000 additional came anyway.

Some of the early arrivals looked for fun but gave up early, convinced Legion officials meant what they said about shearing frills and play for wartime problems.

Louis P. Johnson, President Roosevelt's recent envoy to India summed it up when he walked into convention headquarters with the query:

"Where is everybody?"

Not that Johnson expected a crowd. It was such a drastic change from the old days.

Johnson, a former national commander, recalled the first Legion convention at Kansas City in 1921. There were 100,000 here then

Hardin County Man Held After McGuffey Shooting

Special to The Star

KENTON, Sept. 19 — Charges against Pete Emona, 32, farm laborer of near McGuffey, were withheld today as county officials awaited outcome of a serious wound suffered by Rubin Cooley, 28, his brother-in-law.

Sheriff Randall R. Clark said he was told that Emons and Conley had quarreled Thursday afternoon and that Emons obtained the 410 gauge gun with which he shot Conley.

Today Emons, who will face first degree murder charges if his brother-in-law dies, said he was "sorry it happened." He was arrested yesterday by Sheriff Clark and is held in county jail without bond.

HOLD HEIGHTS AFTER FIERCE 5-HOUR BATTLE

Nazi Attempt To Capture Important Position Turned Back.

By The Associated Press

Death-stand Russian troops were credited officially today with defeating the Germans in a critical five-hour battle for a hill commanding the heart of Stalingrad, and as the struggle raged into its 24th day the Soviet high command announced.

"All German attempts to capture this valuable position have failed."

At least two other assaults by massed Nazi tanks and troops were declared to have been repulsed in the smoke-shrouded city itself and in the northwest outskirts and perhaps the bloodiest fighting of the entire German-Russian war.

German field headquarters reported tersely that the battle was being "successfully continued in the face of stubborn enemy resistance" and declared that a strong diversionary attack by tank-led Soviet infantry north of Stalingrad "collapsed with severe losses to the enemy."

This was the first intimation that Soviet Marshal Semeon Timoshenko may have launched a powerful flanking movement to sweep around the Nazi siege armies.

The German high command said Russian troops which managed to penetrate Nazi positions in the diversionary thrust were annihilated and 100 Soviet tanks destroyed.

Significantly, Hitler's headquarters claimed no specific gains in Stalingrad, and Russian dispatches said the fled armies had yielded no further ground in the city.

Nazi Dead Litter Streets

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said many streets were littered with German dead, and 400 bodies in grey-green uniforms were counted on the lawns along one short street after Russian bayonet fighters had driven back an attack.

Other reports said Nazi parachute troops were dropping in the city and that many German troops were disguised in Soviet uniforms and German tanks were camouflaged as Russian.

Fresh Soviet reserves, trained in Siberia, were reported pouring into the battle, bolstering the weary veterans who were now within 24 hours of matching the historic defense record of Sevastopol, where the Russians held out for 27 days against the Germans' climactic Crimean offensive.

Besides the bitter hand-to-hand and street-to-street fighting in the city, Soviet headquarters reported "fierce actions" in the northwest outskirts as Nazi Marshal Fedor Von Bock sent perhaps 450,000 troops storming against the Soviet right flank.

"On one sector where the Hitlerites concentrated large infantry and tank forces, they succeeded at the cost of heavy losses in taking possession of several streets," the Russian command said.

Battle Rages Through Night

All through the night, dispatches said, the battle surged in an inferno of burning buildings, exploding bombs and the din of cannon, rifle and machinegun fire.

Front-line dispatches to Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, said the Germans made a furious attempt to capture strategic heights which command the center of the city and important traffic arteries.

Nazi planes loosed hundreds of bombs in a 45-minute "softening up" attack. Then Nazi automatic rifle men, led by 50 tanks, swarmed up the hill and drove the Russians from some positions.

Soviet troops counterattacked, however, and regained their positions after five hours of savage hand-to-hand fighting.

In another action, Red Star said, the Russians fell back through the streets under an assault by two regiments of German infantry paced by 100 tanks, but subsequently counterattacked to regain the lost ground.

Izvestia said the Germans were

Yom Kippur will be ushered in at the beginning of the Sunday evening service by a prayer, Kol Nidrei, widely known because of its specific traditional music. It will conclude with a service called "the closing of the gates" recalling the closing of the temple gates at Jerusalem and symbolizing the closing of the great day of prayer.

The keynote of Yom Kippur is the divine assurance that guilt can be atoned for by penitence, prayer and righteous action. Each individual must pray for himself.

Loyalty to Christ

A SERMONETTE
By REV. JOHN A. CARRIKER
Pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian Church

WEBSTER [illegible] to be faithful to [illegible]. If we are loyal to Christ that we are true to Him, and [illegible] the greatest cause there is, we are faithful to it.

The meaning of loyalty is simple and clear. Every child easily understands it. We are being constantly asked to be loyal to our country in this world crisis. We know that it means to give our lives if [illegible] and that [illegible]. The life and [illegible] of the men and women in the armed forces and the defense effort. The loyalty of an American citizen is measured by how much he can sacrifice and [illegible] to the cause of his country. Loyalty to Christ and His cause is tried and by the same standard—how much one gives his life and his all to Christianity.

There are many loyalties in one's life. Therefore there are greater and more important ones who will make the most of his life and put his loyalties in their proper order. Otherwise lesser loyalty will hinder the greater. No life is ever right which does not put first things first.

LOYALTY to Christ is not only the greatest of all loyalties but it makes every worthwhile loyalty in our lives finer and better. When one is loyal to Christ he gives a finer loyalty to his family, his business, his work, his country and to all phases of his life. When we put Christ first in our lives we just naturally lift everything else in life to a higher level. We may win this war by weight of arms—licking the Japs to a frazzle and tearing the German war machine apart—but we can not bring an enduring peace to ourselves and other peoples without the Spirit of Christ.

The greatest, the most pressing and the most vital need in every community across the land is for Americans young and old to give loyalty to Christ first place in their lives. Can you think of any other or more certain way of bringing an enduring peace to your own heart and to the peoples of the world?

Poll Shows Compulsory Pay Deductions Favored by Public for Bond Buying

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 13—One important difference has existed in recent months between the attitude of the government and the attitude of the people so far as the war program is concerned.

The difference—which symbolizes the mood of the country—is that while the government has up to now been endeavoring to keep the civilian program largely voluntary, the people are ready, and have been ready for some time, to make many parts of it compulsory.

The latest evidence of this fact is that the majority of Americans are ready at this time to see the government put into effect a program for the compulsory purchase of war bonds in place of the present voluntary one.

Ever since shortly after Pearl Harbor, Institute surveys have found the majority of employed persons willing to have their employers deduct ten per cent of their pay to purchase bonds for them. Now a slight majority favor requiring such a deduction by law.

The views of the country were sounded by the Institute on this issue in a coast to coast survey.

"Should all people receiving wages, salaries or other income be required by law to put ten cents out of every dollar of their income in war savings bonds and stamps?"

All Voters

Yes	52%
No	43
Undecided	5

Employed Persons

Yes	51%
No	45
Undecided	4

The majority of voters have for some time favored compulsion in other aspects of the war effort.

For nearly a year, for example, the majority have been in favor of legislation to fix all wages and prices—a step congress is now considering at the behest of the President.

The majority likewise believe that the government should take full charge of an industrial mobilization program, exercising the right to make workers in non-war industries change their jobs to war factories. There is also substantial sentiment for a compulsory draft of women for war time jobs.

No Fear of Dictatorship.

Surveys have shown that the people are not afraid of granting the government dictatorial powers when it comes to organizing the war effort.

They believe that democracy can streamline itself for war, and have no particular fear that the essentials of democracy will be permanently lost in the process.

Their attitude is that if we lose the war because we are not as tough minded as the enemy, there will be precious little democracy left for anybody to enjoy.

Prohibition View Shows No Change

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 19.—The first nine months of U. S. warfare have brought no significant change in national prohibition sentiment, an Institute survey reveals.

Right now, the country remains overwhelmingly opposed to another "dry era."

Both the liquor and the prohibition interests have been keeping a keen ear tuned for significant changes in the public mind toward the liquor question. But apparently the present war is so far not giving the same impetus to the dry movement as the last war did. In spite of the fact that the ever-active dry groups have succeeded in getting a number of bills introduced into congress and have been pressing for legislation prohibiting the sale of liquor in areas around army camps.

Since the public will in the long run be the deciding factor in the wet-dry issue, the Institute has taken the question to the voters in a sampling plebiscite. The question put to a true cross-section of voters in every state in the country was this:

"If the question of national prohibition should come up again, would you vote for it or against it?"

Here are the findings:

Would Vote for Prohibition	38%
Would Vote Against	62

While the American Institute was making its study a somewhat similar poll was taken in Australia, where considerable agitation has been in progress for wartime prohibition. The question put to Australian voters was:

"Would you be in favor of war-time prohibition?"

Of those with opinions, 74 per cent wanted no prohibition, while 26 per cent would institute prohibition in Australia during the war period.

Women Vote Drier.

A breakdown of the figures obtained in the American Institute survey brings to light some cause for anxiety in the wet camps.

Among those with opinion, more women than men are in favor of prohibition, the men standing 70-30 against, the women only 54 to 46. Furthermore, while the voters under 30 years of age are 71-29 opposed to a return to prohibition, voters over 50 are evenly split on the question. And finally, the farmers, who are traditionally dry, favor national prohibition by a 55-45 vote.

The Trend.

Ever since the 1933-34 official state referenda which brought the repeal of prohibition, there has been a gradual upswing in dry sentiment. Whether or not it will ever become strong enough to bring about another prohibition law is a question that only time can answer.

The table below would indicate, however, that the dry advocates have a long way to go before a majority of the voters would approve another prohibition law.

A Promise for Tomorrow

BY ELEANOR ATTERBURY

YESTERDAY Julie Hamilton is a doctor and a good one—the difficulty is that she cannot cure the bitterness in the soul of Pete Fowler. Pete is doing a great job in Africa, but he resents the accident that grounded him for life, and keeps him out of the Air Corps. And for reasons that Julie understands, but with heartbreak, Pete seems determined to throw her into the arms of Bart Rogers.

CHAPTER THREE

"Water's Fine"

AFTER the first awful moment, Julie recovered herself and managed to wave carelessly.

"That's Pete Fowler," she said with what she hoped sounded like casualness. But inside she heard her other self offering any price to buy back that moment. To have Pete see her accepting Bart's kisses! It seemed cheap, and silly.

"Hiyah, Pete!" Bart shouted. "Come on in. Water's fine."

They both watched Pete make his way toward them through the jubilant guests. His limp was more noticeable than usual, Julie's trained mind observed instantly. He looked tired, strained.

"What'll you have, guy?" Bart clapped an arm across Pete's shoulders rising some six inches higher than his own. "Scotch with your soda?"

Pete shook his head. "Soda without the Scotch. No minor vices, you know," he grinned, but his eyes didn't change.

"Here's happy days," Pete toasted now with his soda water.

As she put down her own emptied glass, Julie marvelled again that Pete, with all his dreams shattered around him, could hold so steadfastly to his ideal. Not every man would have grieved so for a lost opportunity to risk his life. But that was Pete. Being grounded, he was more conscious than before of the glorious thrill of flight.

"Surprised to see you out without your stethoscope, Doc," Pete said with a smile that masked the sharpness for all but Julie.

Came the Dawn

Memory of their recent sharp quarrel flicked more color into Julie's cheeks but she kept her smile steady. "Oh there's lots to learn about hearts that you can't hear through a stethoscope, you know."

"Really? I wouldn't know about that," Pete said levelly "But Bart here—thats his meat." And grinning, ducked Bart's mocking upper-cut.

"You're darned right," Bart agreed. "Anything Julie learns about cardiac action from now on, she learns from me. Don't you, sweet?"

"Pete! Pete, darling! I didn't know you'd arrived. Why didn't someone tell me."

Julie turned in time to catch the full radiance of Dawn's welcome.

Julie had reason to remember that moment long afterward. But now, she had difficulty keeping back a giggle, waiting for Pete's inevitable smart crack. He loathed affectation, anything that smacked of exaggeration.

But the laughter died in her throat as she watched Pete move toward Dawn now. His real smile came to life. Even his voice sounded deeper.

"Hello, Dawn." He took her hands in the same spirit that they were offered—like a precious, fragile treasure he'd been entrusted with.

Dawn led him away almost immediately. Led him, Julie's thoughts echoed themselves, was exactly right.

Tears for Julie

From a safe distance, Julie watched Pete's face. Only once—when Dawn said something about our indebtedness to the men who went to the front to protect our way of life — did pain flicker across his face. And suddenly she knew why his bitterness had suddenly grown so keen. Pete wanted to wear a uniform—for Dawn's sake.

Then she saw Dawn and Pete calling laughing "goodnights" from the hall.

"Looks like old Pete has fallen at last," Bart said carelessly.

"Sure. Haven't you noticed? Ever since the Fiesta." He nodded toward the foyer where a little whirlpool centered around Dawn and Pete, broke only when they'd finally gone. "Remember that day of the clam-bake?"

Julie shook her head. During Fiesta week she and Dad had worked twelve to fifteen hours a day fighting a desperate battle against influenza. "Pete isn't usually so devoted," she said when she could.

"Neither is Dawn. He's lucky."

Something in his tone snagged her attention. She glanced up, caught a little flicker of envy in his expression. "Bart Rogers! I believe you're in love with Dawn Kelland yourself!"

Instantly the expression vanished, replaced by his infectious smile. "I'm in love, all right. But not with Dawn. Maybe I was once. What guy hasn't been at one time or another! A case of Dawn-flu is just like growing pains."

"Maybe this is the real thing, then." Bart hugged her. "Love. Ever hear of it?"

Miss Reese Weds Lieut. Francis in Ceremony at Lima

MISS THELMA REESE, niece of Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lima, became the bride of Lieut. Lewis M. Francis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Francis of Harding Highway-W, in a ceremony Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Barringer home.

The Episcopal wedding service was read by Rev S S Hardy, rector of St. Paul's church of Marion, before an improvised altar at the fireplace in the living room. Tall white candles and masses of white gardenias, white single gladioli and white dahlias, against a draping of heavy white satin formed the background. Pink satin bows were at either side of the kneeling bench.

The stairway down which the bride descended was decorated with garlands of white mums intertwined with maidenhair fern.

While the guests were arriving Mrs. Kathryn Eagan, harpist, played and she also played the wedding march and soft music while the vows were being exchanged.

The bride wore a cream satin gown with a bustle back. The long, full skirt was marked by the basque effect of the bodice. She wore a cap of white Duchess lace, and orange blossoms in her hair. She carried a white prayer book with a nosegay of orange blossoms.

Mrs. Barringer, who was matron of honor, wore an afternoon gown of blue silk velvet and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and pansies.

A reception for the wedding guests was given at the home. The appointments were in white and gold and the tiered wedding cake was decorated with naval insignia and an anchor on top.

Lieutenant Francis and his bride left on a trip to Hot Springs, Va., and after the first of the month will be at home in Pensacola, Fla., where he is in the legal department of the United States navy. Mrs. Francis formerly was employed in the office of the Marion Loan Co.

Lieutenant Francis is a graduate of Harding High school and of the Harding law school at Ohio Northern university. Prior to being commissioned in the navy six months ago he had a law office in Marion.

Guests at the wedding included Mrs. George Marbach and daughter Katherine and John Reese of Terre Haute, Ind., Homer J. Hanson of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Soule of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Don Midlam of Lima and Mr. and Mrs. Burnie Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams, Mrs Charles Barringer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Baughman, Mrs. Charles Mort, Mrs. E. These maps are very legible in every detail, featuring all of the political divisions, principal cities of the world and even the shortest steamship distances between ports. Its size, 50 inches by 36 inches makes this map ideal for use in offices, reception rooms, schools and homes.

This Cleartype General Map of the World is printed on heavy, durable paper. Various countries are printed in six different colors. Then, if you are interested in comparing time, you will appreciate the world time tables, plainly marked, together with a scale of miles. With these aids you can make fairly accurate calculations.

Marion Day Nursery Plans Studied by Child League

State Speaker Tells of Operations in Other Cities; Investigating Committee Named.

Establishment of a day nursery, if and when mothers of Marion and the adjoining community are called by their government to go into active war industry, was discussed at a meeting of representatives of the Marion Federation of the Child Conservation League, city and county health and welfare workers, civic and educational workers Friday night at the Y. M. C. A. The speaker was Miss Louise Noble, consultant for day care of children of working mothers, department of public welfare, of Columbus.

The purpose of the meeting, at which Mrs. Paul Lust, president of the Marion Federation of the Child Conservation League, presided, was to learn from the various city and county groups, civic organizations, their opinions as to Marion's needs and also to study the steps necessary to establish a day nursery. A movement to investigate Marion's need of day nursery, as a result of the community becoming a defense area, was begun last spring by the federation. Definite action will be taken at a meeting of the federation next Tuesday night.

Miss Vivian Hall, case workers, division of public assistance, and Mrs. Lust were named co-chairmen of an investigating committee to go into details of Marion's need for a day nursery to care for children of mothers employed in war work. Mrs Edith Treat, Girl Scout director, offered the use of the Girl Scout office as a place where sponsors of the day nursery might contact working mothers as to the placing of children in the day nursery.

Miss Noble told how nurseries had been established and operated in other cities and of problems encountered. She talked informally and answered questions on the working of the day nursery.

It was the opinion of Miss Noble and those present that Marion will definitely need the services of a day nursery and that preparations should be begun at an early date to prepare for the work.

The Marion Federation of the Conservation League is [illegible] of Mt. Gilead Chapter of Mt. Gilead, the Senior Marion circle, Junior Marion circle, Child Research and Child [illegible] league.

• When that special-delivery bomb drops on Berlin, it will probably be marked "Made in U. S. A."

No other country can compare with America's war production, now that we're really rolling. No other has the men, the machines—or the electric power.

It takes a tremendous lot of power to turn the wheels that turn out tanks, planes and ships for all the United Nations—but America is power-full.

We can thank the men and management of America's electric companies for that. They looked and planned ahead. They were really ready when war came—with more electric power than Germany, Japan and Italy combined. They were able to meet sudden military and industrial demands all over the map.

Here is a business built the American way—by local enterprise and individual investment—dedicated to defending the American way until the last bit of air-mail has been delivered to the last dictator!

Rent Questions Answered

Following is one of a series of questions and answers prepared by officials and experts in the Mar on rents federal rent control unit, released by J. Barrar Fisher, rent director for the area, covering the scope of rent control and the maximum rents to date, with explanations regarding adjustments between landlord and tenant and penalties.

• • •

To provide some flexibility in rent control, the federal regulations set up machinery for adjusting maximum rents where conditions have changed since the maximum-rent date. The grounds on which the area rent director may raise or lower the maximum are limited. Chiefly they cover substantial alterations in the housing accommodations, substantial alterations in the services or furnishings, and leases based on personal or special relationships between the landlord and tenant.

Q. What sort of alterations to a house or an apartment or a tenement will justify a change in the maximum rent?

A. The regulations will permit an increase in maximum rent only if the alterations "bring about a substantial change in the housing accommodations by a major capital improvement as distinguished from ordinary repair and maintenance."

• • •

Q. On the maximum-rent date the landlord charged $35 for a four-room cottage. Shortly afterward he built a bedroom and bath in the unfinished attic. Is he entitled to raise the rent?

A. Yes, the rent director may approve a higher rent because the alterations do create a substantial change by "a major capital improvement as distinguished from ordinary repair and maintenance."

• • •

Q. A landlord painted the kitchen and papered the living room. Then he raised the rent $2 a month. Is the increase allowable?

A. No, because painting and papering constitute ordinary repair and maintenance and are items generally provided by the landlord unless the rental agreement specifies otherwise.

• • •

Q. Then if the landlord spent the equivalent of five or six months' rent putting a new roof on the house, he cannot raise the rent to offset that expense?

A. Not for that reason alone. The landlord must stand the costs of maintenance of the property.

• • •

Q. Suppose that the landlord is unwilling or unable to make normal repairs and keep the property up and as a result it has deteriorated substantially since the maximum-rent date.

A. In that case, if the deterioration is more than ordinary wear and tear, the rent director may reduce the maximum rent.

• • •

Q. What happens to the maximum rent when the landlord removes some or all of the furniture of a furnished apartment other than at the tenant's request?

A. If the maximum rent was for a furnished apartment, then the rent must be reduced.

Q. How is the maximum rent determined where there have been substantial alterations in the property since the maximum rent date?

A. If the accommodations were substantially changed by a major capital improvement between the maximum rent date and the date on which federal regulations became effective, the maximum rent is the first rent charged for the remodeled quarters. However, the landlord must report this rent to the rent director, who may order a decrease.

• • •

Q. What is the procedure if the alterations were completed after the date on which federal rent regulations became effective?

A. In that case the owner must petition the rent director at least 15 days before renting the property, to fix the maximum rent.

Since March 1, 1942, a large, single-family house has been made into apartments for four families. How is the maximum rent for each apartment set?

A. If the remodeling was completed between March 1, 1942, and the date on which federal rent regulations became effective, the maximum rent is the first rent charged for the new quarters. The owner, however, must file a report with the rent director, who has authority to lower the figure. If completed after the date on which federal rent regulations became effective, the maximum rent must be set in advance by the rent director.

BICYCLE RIDER HURT IN TRAFFIC MISHAP

Figures in Accident with Taxi Near Marion.

Dan Augenstein of near Prospect, employed as a layout man at the Marion Steam Shovel Co., was treated at City hospital at midnight last night for treatment of injuries suffered when his bicycle was struck by a taxi cab.

The accident occurred about three miles south of Marion on Route 4.

According to the state patrol report Mr. Augenstein and the taxi, owned by the Yellow Taxi Co. and driven by Colby Hill of Silver street, were traveling south. Apparently Mr. Augenstein had no tail light, the patrol reported, and his bicycle, a brand new vehicle, was struck by the cab. Mr. Augenstein was thrown to the edge of the highway and the bicycle was demolished.

The Merle H. Hughes ambulance took Mr. Augenstein to the hospital. He was released this morning, the hospital reported.

Caucasus Situation Critical

In the central Caucasus, the situation once more reached a critical stage as the Germans stepped up the fury of their drive through the Terek river valley toward the Grozny oil fields and the Caspian sea. There was no claim that the thrust had been stopped.

The German high command said Nazi troops broke through strongly fortified and mined positions in the Mozdok sector and drove the Russians from several dominating heights.

Other developments:

Air War—Soviet warplanes of the Baltic fleet raided an unidentified port in or near German-occupied Denmark, the Russians announced, and left five big fires raging.

Dispatches from Stockholm said planes flew over the west coast of Sweden during the night shortly after heavy explosions had been heard in the direction of Denmark.

No German night raiders appeared over Britain, and the RAF was presumably grounded by bad weather over the continent.

The British disclosed that the RAF now was using giant four-ton "double block-buster" bombs to scourge German cities, and some observers believe it was the war's dealiest weapon.

The British air ministry said the huge misiles—nearly three times bigegr than Germany's heaviest bigger than Germany in the raid on Karlsruhe, Sept. 2, when 270 acres of the city were destroyed, and on Dusseldorf.

Battle of Egypt—Axis reports indicated that a break might be imminent in the two-week-old lull on the El Alamein front, 80 miles west of Alexandria.

Italian headquarters, reporting a burst of British activity, said the axis inflicted heavy losses on tank-led British troop columns making "exploratory thrusts" in the southern sector of the 35-mile front.

The Germans, likewise hinting that something big might be developing, said German and Italian fliers carried out "continuous" bombing and machine-gunning attacks on British tank reserves and motorized columns yesterday.

But British G.H.Q. said land operations were confined to artillery duels.

HILDEBRANDT

Connaught's Own Rifles, 156th Battalion. Later he served as a civilian motor transport instructor at Camp Custer, Mich., and from there went to officers training school at Fremont, Calif., where he was stationed at the time the Armistice was signed. Two of Captain Hildebrandt's uncles served as officers in the Boer war and Admiral George Dewey was his god father by proxy. His mother was a superior with an expeditionary force of British nurses sent by Queen Victoria to Africa to combat the black plague.

Captain Hildebrandt has been active in wartime affairs in the city. He organized and served as lieutenant - commander of the Marion Rifles and Ambulance Corps when he recently turned over to the medical emergency division of civilian defense headed by Dr. H. K. Mouser and Dr. Thomas H. Sutherland. The Marion Rifles and ambulance corps was organized Jan. 7, this year.

Captain Hildebrandt came to Marion in 1921 from Lorain to take over the work of director of physical education at the Y. M. C. A. after holding similar positions in Detroit and Cleveland. Later he operated the Cadillac agency and more recently has been property manager for Henry True. He is a member of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Bird-McGinnis Post, No. 162, American Legion, Marion Lodge of Elks No. 32, the Y. M. C. A., a sustaining member of the Boy Scouts, and affiliated with the P.-T. A., and is on the advisory board of selective service Board No. 1.

Captain Hildebrandt was married in August last year to Mary Alice Hall of Marion, by a padre in the German Canadian internment camp for German air corps officers at Gravanhurst, Ontario, who used the Church of England ceremony. Mrs. Hildebrandt and Captain Hildebrandt's two children, Agnes Crichton, 8, and Georgia Kathryn, 6, will remain in Marion for the present.

COSTS

garded in some quarters as a congressional answer to Mr. Roosevelt's recent you-do-it-or-I-will ultimatum to legislators to act on anti-inflation legislation before Oct. 1.

To accomplish the objectives of the bill, the President would be authorized to suspend sections of the price control act which prevent the imposition of ceilings on farm commodities at levels below 110 per cent of parity. He could not drive them below parity, however.

The bill declares that farm ceilings shall not be set below 100 per cent of parity, or the highest market price for the commodity between Jan. 1 and Sept. 15, 1942, adjusted by the secretary of agriculture for grade, location and seasonal differentials.

The committee adopted an amendment by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), however, which made two important exceptions. The amendment provided that modifications shall be made in the ceilings of any raw or processed farm commodity, under regulations prescribed by the President, when it appears necessary to increase production of the commodity for war purposes, or when it is "satisfactorily shown" that the maximum price would result in "gross inequities" because of increased labor or other costs.

Parity Revision Defeated

The amendment was accepted by farm bloc forces after they lost their fight to revise the parity formula by including farm labor costs.

The house committee bill, approved 18 to 3, likewise rejected the farm bloc's proposals but agreed to a provision requiring that no farm price ceiling be established which would return the farmer less than parity as now computed or less than this year's highest market prices.

The measure also stipulated that for the war's duration and for three years after, farm prices should not be allowed to drop below the 90 per cent of parity.

Chairman Steagall (D-Ala) of the house committee explained that if "gross inequities" are caused by wage and salary stabilization provisions the President would have authority to correct them even to forcing "wages and salaries downward."

No government control would be exercised, he added, on wage or salary increases unless an employe had received a 15 per cent raise since Jan. 1, 1941. The wage limitations also would not apply to employers having less than eight employes.

Leaders voiced expectation of completing congressional action in advance of the Oct. 1 deadline established by the President.

Cuba Sentences Nazi To Face Firing Squad

By The Associated Press

HAVANA, Sept. 19—A special tribunal today sentenced Heinz August Luning to death by firing squad as a German spy.

The 31-year-old Luning was seized early this month by Cuban police who described him as "one of the most important spies yet captured in America."

Major General Manuel Benitez, chief of the Cuban national police, said he had made a complete confession of widespread espionage and authorities indicated he might escape the firing squad by turning government witness.

Grew Gives U. S. Different View on Japanese Foe

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew in declaring yesterday at Syracuse that the Japs are tougher than the Germans and will fight until utterly crushed, is trying to hammer home a truth which only in recent days has begun to register widely in this country.

We started this war with a good many people suffering from distorted ideas about Nippon's vulnerability. Back at the time of Pearl Harbor a reader wrote me a letter which was rather typical of a lot of current comment. A pooh-poohed my statement that the Japanese were hard eggs, and bragged:

"I've lived in the Orient and know my Japs. I'm only five feet four, but I never saw the day when I couldn't lick half a dozen of them, with one hand tied behind my back."

Mr. Grew Changes Views

Now along comes Mr. Grew, who served as our representative among these barbarians for a decade, to say that they "will not crack morally or psychologically or economically" and that "only by utter physical destruction or utter exhaustion of their men and materials can they be defeated." At the same time we are getting from the steaming jungle battlefields of the southwest Pacific islands grim proof of the fanatical willingness of the Mikado's men to die.

When our marines made their daringly successful invasion of Guadalcanal, not one of the many hundreds of Japs who were holding that island surrendered. Each went down in death.

Yes, the worshippers of the Rising Sun will take a lot of beating. What then is the basic strategy which will give best results? Let's get at it this way:

The heart of Nippon's strength, in all categories, lies in the homeland—Japan proper. There are her arsenals, her manpower, her financial resources. All this is contained within an area of 148,750 square miles—about the size of Montana. And the borders aren't protected by other territories, but only by the sea.

Strength Localized

So the strength of this primitive Samson is localized. We don't have to overrun a territory the size of say Australia—a mighty task for any nation—to do our stint. We don't have to reconquer all the Japanese conquests as a preliminary. Our primary task is to cut Samson's locks, whereupon his big body will lose its power.

Therefore I believe that when the major allied offensive against the Japanese gets under way, it will strike primarily at the heart of the empire—Japan proper—rather than start at the circumference with the idea of reclaiming the hodge-podge of Nipponese conquests piece-meal in order to reach the homeland.

The main allied objective is, or so I assume, to fight in Japan proper. We shall approach this operation by first bombing hell out of that neatly arranged concentration of resources. We shall pulverize the island's industries and transportation system until finally we are ready to put an army ashore for the kill.

Once Japan proper is conquered, the rest of the ill-gotten empire will succumb. That doesn't mean there won't be much fighting outside Japan. There will be, and it's going on right now. But our main task will be done when we have just about wiped the mikado's kingdom off the map.

use by women the other by men.

Three ambulances will serve the hospital, two of them large army four-wheel-drive machines like those used in the field, and the other a smaller one.

The hospital, Dr. Wendorf said, is set up to take care of all injuries occurring at the plant, both during construction and operation. Illnesses of a minor nature are treated at the hospital but those of a more serious nature are referred to the worker's family physician unless emergency treatment is required.

The hospital and first aid stations to be set up in the operating plants are expected to require a staff of 24 nurses. Only a few nurses are now employed. Three first aid stations are being maintained during construction, all in charge of men who have been trained by Dr. Wendorf.

Among Dr. Wendorf's assistants are Mrs. Bernice V. Fouts, secretary; Mrs. Loretta McArthur, Miss Alice McMurray and Mrs. Elizabeth Rife, nurses; John Sekinger, in charge of first aid; Miss Dorothy Roberts, laboratory technician.

Well Qualified Supervision

Dr. Wendorf came to the Scioto Ordnance Plant from the Ravenna Ordnance Works on April 1 to serve as plant doctor for the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. He has been in charge of the medical department since his arrival, carrying on the same type of work he performed at the Ravenna plant. He was graduated from Ohio State university college of medicine in 1927 and was at Mercy hospital in Columbus until 1928 both as interne and house doctor. He had established a private practice in Barnesville before going with the Hunkin-Conkey company. He and ... dorf and their ... on the plant ...

"We are in the battle, not only of war unprecedented in scope and size, but likewise a war where defeat is possible he said in a prepared speech. And one where defeat is sure to come unless we, as a people, add to our associated with this war, comprehend in full measure the threat, and summon the tremendous forces needed for ultimate victory."

He declared there could be no question that the submarine is the major problem confronting the United Nations, a problem "closely tied up with that of an eventual second front in Europe, with the launching of a major counter offensive in the western Pacific and with the supplying of Russia in order to keep her armies in the field."

"We are intensifying every anti-submarine measure and I am confident that in the long run the monthly total of ships lost will be reduced to a point where it is no longer a threat to the supply lines of ourselves and our allies. Mind you, I say in the long run. The battle will be a long and difficult one.

McNutt Says Labor Conscription To Come

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 19—Paul McNutt, director of the war manpower commission, gave a broad hint today that some sort of industrial conscription to press the war is on the way.

"It will come when the President and congress have concluded that the limit of the voluntary system has been reached."

FOOD SHORTAGE IN U. S. PREDICTED

House Committee Alarmed at Future Prospects.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—Possibility of "an acute food shortage" was stressed by the house committee today while the senate defense investigating committee ordered inquiries into what it termed "the alarming prospect of a drastic meat shortage next year."

Obviously irked at what Representative Fulmer (D-S.C.) described as a "carefree" attitude of "disregard for the farm labor problem and the possibility of an acute food shortage," the house committee announced it might start investigation of the situation.

Senator Truman (D-Mo.) of the senate committee said private inquiries are being made into the nation's cattle feeding program as a result of complaints from packers and retailers that the hoarding of unfattened grassfed cattle is the primary "bottleneck of the food problem of the war."

"The committee has decided," Fulmer said after a discussion with other members, "to adopt an aggressive attitude toward the farm labor situation and will call upon the secretary of agriculture, the selective service system and the war manpower commission for an explanation of their programs."

Fulmer asserted that unless present policies "is changed and changed quickly, this country and the allies we are expected to feed are going to be faced with an acute shortage of food."

The chairman accused War Manpower Director Paul V. McNutt of being "more interested in taking men away from the farms and putting them in industry without making any provision for farm labor."

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—This ... a request of Bernard ... chairman ... as well as ... he ... ing to have some form of rubber and plants of U, the new boss of that department promises—and he indicates it won't be long in coming.

William M. Jeffers, in his first press interview ... becoming the nation's rubber commissioner, asserted yesterday that production of synthetic rubber would be started swiftly, in accordance with ... plans, while a search for improvements ... on the side.

He said plants to turn out the synthetic product would be rushed to completion, and their output stepped up to any required degree.

"You can't take America off of wheels," declared Jeffers. "You can lose the war that way, because of the disruption it would cause in our economy.

"We have to face civilian needs, including movement and farm produce ... and we have to have buses and a certain number of passenger cars to take people to and from work. But you can reduce the use of rubber to the irreducible minimum."

He hinted that when his new job's problems were "all pulled together," he was going to say "some pretty sharp things."

"My motion," he continued, "is to get the mystery out of this tremendous deal, to get it on the table, and get the job done."

Third Front

REPORTS of renewed demands for aid, in the form of a second front in Europe, suggest that Russia soon may be needing a third front in Asia. If the Japanese attack Siberia, it will be only a question of time until the possibility of United States attack to relieve pressure on Russia at that point will be raised. Nothing could illustrate the complications of global war more clearly.

Russia, with a land mass reaching approximately half the distance around the world in the latitude of Alaska, would be heavily dependent on aid at both extremes from the United States, lying midway in the earth's other hemisphere. That is already the pattern of the war, in fact. It makes perfectly plain why the Japanese are battling fiercely to keep the United States engaged in the Solomon Islands. It makes perfectly plain, also, how much Germany gained when it persuaded Japan's not too unwilling militarists to gamble on the outcome of the war.

At this moment, Germany has one chance left to win—the possibility that a Japanese blow at Russia might topple that beleaguered nation, thereby removing the last effectual land resistance to Adolf Hitler's plan of conquest.

Plane Knocking Is Serious

THIS country's best bet to win the war, its citizens believe, is airplane production. The thousands of bombers and fighters they can fabricate with their industrial machinery and skill will protect them against the Axis.

Plane knocking, therefore, is serious. It strikes at the heart of the American credo that swarms of superior aircraft will turn the tide of the war. There is no law to prohibit knocking and there shouldn't be any. But there should be some way to present both sides.

There is, of course, another side to be presented. United States airplanes are not, on the whole, inferior to the ships of other belligerents. Some of them are admittedly superior and are proving themselves to be so in combat. At the same time, some types undoubtedly leave a lot to be desired.

The truth probably is that American planes are under the disadvantage which has given the United Nations' whole war effort a black eye. They have had to contend with an enemy who had seized the initiative and was in position to dictate the terms of battle. They were not only too little and too late, but in many cases weren't even the right type.

Best way in popular government to resolve doubts and stabilize public opinion is to let a group of disinterested citizens make an open report—an extension of the procedure used after Pearl Harbor and in handling the rubber problem. The United States could profit from a public report by a committee appointed to study its airplane production. If it's true that this nation's planes are inferior, something should be done about it. If it's not true, which is more likely, something should be done about that, too.

Are the Japanazis Right?

THE needless wear you may be giving the tires on your car while waiting for gasoline rationing is not something between you and your conscience. When the brutalitarians were planning the war they counted on Americans to be morally flabby when confronted with a do-or-die ultimatum. That was the basic plan of total war. First, they would muster all their resources. They would become as strong as possible. The United States, however, would not and could not become as strong as possible, because it could not break itself of the habit of soft living.

The Germans and Japanese both have talked about their theory openly. They have called this a decadent democracy. They have sneered at our impotency in situations that a dictator would handle by a decree. They have depended on what they contend is the fatal weakness of self-government—its lack of any machinery for sustained willful action. And the tragic truth is that in almost everything pertaining to tire conservation so far they have been right. If the Japanazis had planned it, the result to date couldn't have been more satisfactory for their purposes.

They hope now that in the interval between the Baruch committee's report and development of machinery to carry out the committee's recommendation further irreparable damage may be done by needless driving and reckless operation. Every driver who accommodates them is helping them to win the war as certainly as though he had committed an act of sabotage.

Grindstones

THERE is a message of hope in the government report that the making of grindstones, which had been falling off for many years, has experienced a boom and the plants which turn them out are working at capacity.

What this nation needs is an old fashioned "nose to the grindstone" attitude toward the country's needs. The report shows that America has "an ax to grind" and it doesn't take two guesses to tell whose neck we are sharpening it for.

News Behind the News

Some Folks in Washington Show Concern Over Lack of Interest in Election.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. — A wintry alarm is being sounded by the administration as a result of ballot boredom, evident during the primaries.

While Donald Nelson in Tue Issues a statement advising workers, in a non-partisan tone, to take time from their war work to go to the polls, as democracy is what we are fighting for.

The word has been taken up by the official A. F. of L. Secretary, Philip Pearl, who writes that "all signs indicate a dangerously lackadaisical attitude on the part of the average citizen toward the coming election."

Radio broadcasters are spreading it further.

The left-wing journals are going even beyond, and warning the administration it may lose the house, if it does not "do something."

Thus, Mr. Nelson's pure non-political plea is being maliciously confused into a jingle-jangle-jingle of political campaigning.

The truth is the administration expected the new war workers in industry to contribute heavy new support for the administration candidates in the primaries. But, everywhere in the industrial regions in Maine, in the supposedly hot Michigan Republican contest, and throughout the farm belt, new low voting records were established.

Explanation.

The explanation most common in Washington is that people are too busy to vote, that neither worker nor farmer wants to read, think or talk politics after the heavy days of work they are putting in now.

Probably nearer the truth is the fact that no great political issue is flaming in the country today, and that people have not been excited by the alternatives presented to them at the polls thus far. To be added to these reasons are:

The complete failure of the attempt to make pre-Pearl Harbor voting records of congressmen a subject of political debate and, not in the least last, gas rationing and the conservation.

Lack of interest generally favors the man in office. He has the organization and machine votes which always turn out, rain or shine. But, this time, the administration's confidence in this interpretation has been shaken by the Gallup poll indicating diminishing Democratic prospects.

Smothered almost entirely in the senate banking committee hearings on the price stabilization bill was Leon Henderson's comment that it was actually a farm price interest bill. Mr. Henderson could have gone further, and he not been under administration wraps and "embarrassed," as he said, by some of the questions asked by the senators.

He could have said (as all inside officials know) that the congressional leaders stretched in the original Brown bill the farm price formula Mr. Roosevelt offered. The President had said congress should fix the highest farm price on any recent date as the ceiling (he wanted August 15.)

But Senator Bankhead of Alabama, who was in the conference of the leaders framing the legislation, knew that cotton had been much higher last spring than on Aug 15. The senate floor leader, Barkley (from Kentucky) knew that burley tobacco had been higher too.

So these two—with eyes on home products—proposed that the Brown bill fix the ceiling at the highest price since last Jan. 1 on all products (not mentioning cotton or tobacco, of course.)

Misinterpretation.

The farm bloc nearly got away with one just as broad. Mr. Roosevelt mentioned idly in his message that labor wages should be considered in fixing farm parity price goals.

The farm bloc chose to interpret this casual phrase as meaning the cost of farm labor should be considered and, therefore, old parity price goals should be revised and moved upward. This would have had the effect of boosting parity—and prices—up to 125 per cent.

Mr. Roosevelt had to stop this misinterpretation of what he said, by calling in the leaders and writing an open letter explaining he meant parity should be adjusted to labor wages, as, in fact, is being done now.

The American Farm Bureau head, Edward O'Neal, showed the hidden meanings of this sideline argument. He testified that when the original parity fixing bill was up in congress some years ago, the farm bloc did not want to include farm labor as a factor in computing parity because such labor costs then were low.

Now they are high, so the bloc would like to have them computed.

Africa's "White Angel"

NURSE FLORENCE BYRNE

By WESTON HAYNES
Wide World Features

BRAZZAVILLE, French Equatorial Africa, Sept. 19.—The next time you are in L'Oubangui be sure to go over to Bangui and see Florence Byrne, the American nurse with the Fighting French. Americans wandering about the jungle are not common and Florence will be glad to see you.

Just ask any Fighting French soldier for "Madame Sergeant" and you'll be whisked to the infirmary.

In a yard outside the building, baking in the equatorial sun, are native soldiers—tirailleurs—great ebony soldiers of the Sara and Bornu tribes. All have bandaged legs and feet. You find today is bandaging day and that these men are all African ulcer patients waiting their turn for fresh dressings.

You are shown to a small room and see a table on which a writhing tirailleur is pinned down by several of his mates. His foot is swollen to twice its size. On the big toe is a tremendous ulcer—the parasitical African ulcer that is quick to form on any cut skin, particularly on the legs or feet because the tirailleurs go barefoot.

Florence Byrne amputates that toe without even administering local anesthetic. There is no anesthetic except for major cases. The tirailleur's only protest is the clashing of his teeth and the hiss of breathing under terrific pain.

Florence looks up then and sees you standing there, watching. She says, "Hello. You're a long way from home. How about having lunch?"

You are a little surprised; you had expected to surprise her.

She completes the operation and talks swiftly at the same time.

"Knew you were an American because you don't wear a sun helmet. Very foolish.

"Notice if you will, that these men don't utter a sound, no matter how deep we go. When you get home tell 'em how badly we need stuff. Bandages. Ether. Adhesive. Oh—everything—"

Florence Byrne is 38, a native of New York City. She was a business woman in Paris before the war, with an interest in a large radio concern. She had her own racing stables.

When war broke out she volunteered for ambulance service, furnishing her own ambulance. She drove for the French Red Cross until May, 1940, then went to Syria with the wife of Paul Reynaud, former French premier, and 14 other women. When France quit the war she tried to cross the Syrian border and turn her ambulance over to the British, but was caught and thrown in prison for 15 days.

Later she returned to Paris during the German occupation, then went to Lisbon where she got a boat to America.

She was turned down when she offered her services to the American government, so she joined the Fighting French, leaving New York by boat last January. When she got to Lagos she took a plane to Brazzaville, and completed her journey upriver by boat to Bangui. She is the only white nurse there.

There is no end to her work. She assists at major operations, delivers babies for native women, cares for native venereal cases, nurses malaria patients—and has done all this while ill herself of malaria.

For all these services Florence Byrne receives $50 a month, out of which she buys her own uniforms.

Showdown for Mastery of the Air

War Outcome in Balance as Allies, Germany Prepare for Test.

AT the height of their aerial assault on Germany, Great Britain, Russia and the United States are prepared for the worst from the Germans in return. The end of the ground fighting season on the eastern front will relieve swarms of aircraft for renewal of the neglected attempt to bomb the British Isles into a pile of rubble. Victory in Russia undoubtedly would be followed by an all-out aerial attack against Britain. The coming showdown for mastery of the air may occur before the end of 1942.

Air war on a scale never seen before is being waged in Europe now. Reports are received of mass raids on German targets from Russia as well as Great Britain. Later on it is expected that raids will come from a third direction—the Middle East.

No one dreams that Germany will fail to retaliate. The British have too much knowledge of their enemy to believe the lull in the aerial attack on their island means anything but preparation for more savage Nazi raids than those which failed to break British morale in 1940. Reports have been heard recently of new German bombers operating in the substratosphere eight miles above the earth. Both sides are mustering all available strength for the supreme test that is bound to come.

Principal objectives of raids over Germany are German airplane factories where Hitler's ultimate bid for victory is being fashioned. German fuel dumps, warehouses, airfields and plane hideouts are being sought out and destroyed wherever possible. Whether viewed as a prelude to land attack, or as air battle alone, the proportions of a showdown are plainly visible.

IN a survey of the quickening struggle for aviation superiority, The United States News has published the following information:

"From England, heavy bombing raids on Germany are being stepped up to a constant blasting. Four-engined American Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers are taking part. So are big British Lancasters, Sterlings and Halifaxes. All these ships easily cover a range of 1,000 miles. The American bombers carry three and one-half tons of bombs and have repeatedly fought off swarms of the latest German fighters. The biggest British bombers carry eight tons, four apiece of the huge two-ton bombs that can level a city block at a single blast. The raiders are manned mainly by British and Canadian fliers. But the American forces show steadily rising strength.

"From Russia, heavy four-engined bombers are flying 1,000 miles into Germany from the opposite direction. These Russian bombers have attacked Berlin, Koenigsberg, scattered cities in eastern Germany, Budapest and Warsaw.

"In one night's raids, they reported setting 38 fires in Budapest and 12 in Berlin. A big area in Germany is within the 1,000 mile range of both England and Russia. Every Nazi factory that has moved eastward, to get out of bombing range of England, has moved just that much closer to the Russian bases of the bombers flying in from the east.

"From Egypt, American Fortresses and Liberators are carrying the brunt of long-range attack. These great ships are the first line of offense in the Allies fight for the Near East and the eastern Mediterranean.

"The new air offensive jumps over all Hitler's defense lines to attack him from the rear. The Nazi system of coast defenses, the secondary defense lines in France, the Maginot Line now facing west for the Germans, and the inner Siegfried Line—all these, and also the lines of defense against Russia are surmounted by the Allied warships of the skies.

"THE new three-way air offensive is a forerunner of moves to open new Allied fronts against Hitler. Allied decisions on strategy are now two months old. The conclusion is reached that the power of Germany must be broken on the battlefields of Europe. All these things are revealed by President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, reporting the results of conferences of British and American staff leaders in July in London.

"This means a decision for a land invasion, not reliance on bombing alone. But it also means that bombing still can be exploited to the limit of the Allies' powers in the air, as a prelude to land attack. The determination to make that land attack is expressed to Premier Stalin by President Roosevelt as well as by Prime Minister Churchill.

"In one sense, the dress rehearsal raid on Dieppe was a forerunner of the present air offensive. It lured the Nazis into an unplanned and disastrous slugging match for mastery of the air over the battlefield. More big raids on the invasion coast of France, or Belgium or Holland would make Hitler choose again between risking such an air battle, or of abandoning mastery of the air in the neighborhood to the Allies. The present air offensive is an even broader challenge to the Nazis. They never can tell when this may be a forerunner of another reconnaissance in force, or when that in turn might become a real invasion. The Allied danger is that Germany may be able to swing from victory in Russia to a smashing air attack, and possibly even an invasion of England. The Allies also have important advantages:

"Up to now, Germany has been exploiting her interior position and interior lines. Now that position is beginning to expose her to bombing from all directions. The availability of England, Russia and Egypt as forward bases for carrying air attack directly to Germany is a great advantage.

"U. S. air strength already is a formidable reserve. As the fight grows, it will become more heavily engaged. In the end, U. S. air forces may tip the balance against Hitler."

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, Sept. 19, 1922.

President Harding vetoed the soldiers' bonus bill and returned it to congress with a message explaining his reasons. With the spirit of the bill—to give expression of the nation's gratitude to its defenders—the president declared himself in hearty accord, but the provisions of this particular bill, he said, were such as to make it wholly unacceptable to the executive branch of the government upon which was placed the duty of raising the funds to finance payment. Throughout the president's message was a thinly-veiled rebuke to congress for having produced a bill granting the bonus without at the same time producing the means of raising the money.

Workers in the campaign to sell the balance of stock for construction of the Harding Hotel held a dinner meeting at the Marion club. Speakers characterized the project as being the equivalent of adding a new industry to the city as far as employment was concerned. Speakers included R. E. Colvin, architects' representative, J. W. Jacoby, campaign committee vice chairman, Frank A. Huber, J. F. Prendergast and Charles T. Ganvey who was to be the manager of the hotel.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bricker of Green Camp.

D. R. Crissinger of Washington, comptroller of the currency, was on a business trip to Marion.

Out of Bounds

Proprietors of Liquor Places Must Watch Sharp These Days in Trading with Service Men.

By DAMON RUNYON

A GENTLEMAN publicly peddling grog [illegible] days in communities in which soldiers [illegible] around has to keep a couple of [illegible] eyes constantly peeled lest he find himself [illegible] tough jackpot with army and navy authorities.

Any infraction of the rules on the sale of liquor to service men can get a place declared out of bounds by the authorities, which in most areas means automatic suspension of the permits in both the solid and liquid departments of the establishments.

In short, the offender is put out of business at least temporarily. The suspensions are usually lifted later, but the implied knock against the premises remains. The cafe proprietors come to dread the black mark more than they do a loss of business, especially those who operate extensive restaurants in connection with their liquor trade.

The owners of the better class spots have no fear of the regulations insofar as they can see to the line themselves, but they live in a state of trepidation about accidental infractions over which they have no control but which can get them penalized just the same. A sudden drunk involving enlisted men may come up that is not the fault of the owners, yet have the same sad consequences of an intentional digression.

ONE OF the strict regulations in most areas is against the sale of liquor to minors in the service, but the lads are pretty cute about getting around this. A group including one or two age may approach a bar and the kid retires to a booth to view for a minute while the other order enough drinks to cover one for him. Few bartenders, especially during a busy session can spot the deception.

Civilians sometimes lend themselves to the same swindle when they have an underage soldier or sailor at their table by having one absent himself briefly while they order a drink for him. Yet if the M. P.'s or shore cops enter and ferret out the skullduggery by demanding the kid's card, it can be a bad rap against the joint.

For a time the bartenders in some of the war areas made an age suspect display his card but the authorities prohibited this because sometimes the card carried the name of the boy's snip and might provide information useful to the enemy. Now the bartenders have to take a guess. Some of them are very bad guessers.

ONE CAFE proprietor in a western war area who had a suspension scare through an incident of the kind related asked the authorities if he could declare himself out of bounds and decline to sell liquor to any soldiers or sailors whatever. They told him no. They said it would be contrary to the Constitution, or something like that.

Fortunately for the liquor merchants, authorities are quite judicial about the situation and give consideration to the general reputation of a place that commits an infraction. The object of the regulations is the protection of service men against low class deadfalls in which they are always the prey of unscrupulous men and women. These traps are found in every community, and it would be no loss if they were all put out of bounds without even waiting for a squawk.

This Impersonal War

(From The New York Herald Tribune)

This seems not to be a singing war. A Library of Congress display (in honor of the anniversary of "The Star-Spangled Banner") of songs from all our wars includes for the current one, we are told, such titles as "The White Cliffs of Dover," "You're a Sap, Mr. Jap," "Remember Pearl Harbor" or "God Bless America." No doubt they are estimable compositions, but they have not the ring, and, despite the all-pervasiveness of the radio, they make no such impact upon the consciousness as "Tipperary" or "Madelon." "The Long, Long Trail" or "Mademoiselle From Armentieres" or "Over There." Tin Pan Alley's contemporary contributions seem uninspired, and offhand one cannot think of anything which has emerged from the battlefields (where the true soldier songs, like true soldiers, can alone be made) beyond the Australians' "Waltzing Matilda."

Perhaps they will appear, or perhaps the modern soldier does not do enough marching on foot, while the clatter of tanks or the combats of 300-mile-an-hour bombers are not conducive to song. It has not been a singing war. And in another way this conflict has sunk into a silence and impersonality that did not attend the conflict 25 years ago. Our units are blurred into anonymity. We have plenty of divisions but nobody knows where they are, or, more important, where their people came from. The war department recently announced the reconstitution of the old 77th, for example—once New York's own, made up of drafts from the city and trained at Yaphank—but there was no indication that the new 77th would have any such territorial personality. There has been no new "Rainbow" division (the 42nd in the last war), so called because it was deliberately made up of units from all parts of the country. The whole army appears to be a "rainbow" outfit now. The numerals of the old 26th (Yankee division) and 27th (the proud New York state) again adorn the lists, but they belong to any section of the country now nobody knows of it. No songs, no local pride and very few parades. It is a grimly serious war.

How To Walk with a WAAC

Wide World Features

FORT DES MOINES, Ia.—It could be a delicate question. An Army officer wrote his WAAC wife: "Please find out which side of you I walk on?" She is an officer too.

The War Department's answer: As long as he is the senior officer, his wife walks on his left. The field manual, Military Courtesy and Discipline, says that when accompanying a senior officer a junior walks or rides on his left. That's right even if it puts his wife next to the curb on the side walk.

If his wife has higher comparable WAAC rank, then the Army officer walks on her left. In case they have exactly comparable rank, then a matter of minutes can mean one is senior in case they got their commissions the same day.

The bayonet is said to have been invented at Bayonne, France, in the 17th century.

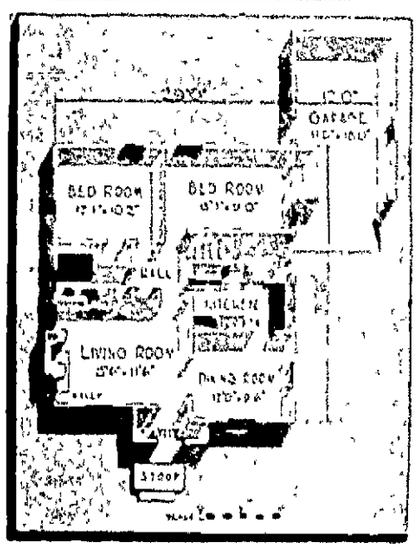
A Compact and Efficient One-Story Home

The attractive five-room house above admirably suits the needs of those who desire a compact, efficient one-story home. Shingled side walls, with a skillful use of vertical siding in the front gable, illustrate the effectiveness of contrasting woods for decorative effect. This is a home designed for economical construction, and offering a structurally sound nucleus for future additions. Shutters and gables offer color contrast. The floor plan at right is ideal for the small family which demands the conveniences of modern living. Especially popular is the attached garage, handy to the kitchen.



Building Quiz

Q. I understand there are certain kinds of flooring which can be applied directly on a concrete slab. What are they?

A. Linoleum, hardwood-block flooring, ceramic, asphalt are all satisfactory for use over a concrete subfloor not on the ground. When the slab to which the flooring is to be applied is laid on the ground, there is always the possibility of slight moisture penetration. Unless the slab has been water proofed, the use of flooring applied directly to the concrete slab should be restricted to either ceramic or asphalt tile.

• • •

Q. I have a quartered oak chair that does not match the rest of my furniture, which is maple. How can I restore it?

A. You cannot make quartered oak look like maple because of the great difference in grain. The best that you can do is to finish it with paint of a shade that matches the maple.

• • •

Q. How can I prevent the woodwork of my house becoming mildewed?

A. Mildew on woodwork is caused by excessive moisture on the wood itself. Woodwork often absorbs too much moisture, if not adequately back-painted. If this is the case, the remedy is to remove the woodwork and back-paint with a good protective primer. The face of the woodwork should also be primed.

• • •

Q. What is the best season for repairing cracked flooring?

A. Winter is the best season for repairing cracked flooring because at this time the wood is thoroughly dry. In repairing cracks one of two methods is usually employed. The cracks may be filled with a paste of glue and sawdust, or hardwood strips may be placed in them.

Suggestions for Cleaning Washable Paint Walls

Walls painted with modern water-thinned washable paints may be washed by sponging the surface lightly, using a soft sponge or cloth and plenty of water. A small amount of mild soap may be used if necessary to loosen the dirt.

If it is the first time the wall has been washed since being painted, it is a good practice to add 2 to 3 per cent of ordinary 40 per cent formaldehyde to the washing water. This will prevent the paint film from absorbing water and will toughen its resistance to abrasion.

One important point to remember is always to start at the bottom of the wall, working up so that dirty water, running down from the sponge, will not wet the dry wall below in streaks.

Don't Overlook Care of Gutters, Downspouts

Leaky and corroded gutters and downspouts often cause serious building damage. They may result in ruined and unsightly walls and ceilings, as well as cause considerable deterioration of exterior material.

Now that conservation of house properties is so important, building experts urge homeowners to repair or install new gutters. Further deterioration of metals which are subject to corrosion may be retarded by the use of suitable paint.

NEGLECT OF ROOF LEADS TO DAMAGE

The "stitch in time" to prevent damage to the home caused by leaky roofs is a new covering laid right over the old one the moment that leaks are discovered or even suspected.

Delay in fixing "bad" spots may allow water to saturate and rot the wooden roof under-structure. Boards are apt to swell and pull away from their fastenings if permitted to get water soaked. Water droppings also cause plaster to fall from walls or ceilings, and stain wallpaper. Failure to make necessary repairs when they are first discovered can never be attributed to economy. Neglected, they will only add to the repairs that will have to be made eventually.

It is not necessary to rip off the old shingles in putting on a new roof unless, of course, the old shingles are obviously in too bad a condition. Any of the standard roofing materials, such as asphalt, tile, or wooden shingles, can be applied right over the old roof. In many instances it is a practical measure to keep the old roof. It acts as a good base for the new covering and, in addition, provides added insulation for the house.

The cost of applying a new roof is low and something that is quickly paid for both by the money saved on interior repairs and the reduction in heating bills.

With the enlisting of Clayton Dunford recently Patsy can boast that she has five brothers in the U. S. navy. One brother, Jack Dunford, was a second class petty officer on the U. S. aircraft carrier Yorktown torpedoed at the battle of Midway. Another brother, Tex Reilly, is serving as a torpedoman on a submarine in hostile waters. William Dunford is a radio operator on a transport and Ward Reilly is stationed at the naval training school at Norfolk, Va. TWO CONVICTS FACE KIDNAP CHARGES

One Captured, Other Still at Large in Kentucky.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 19—Two convicts who abducted a prison officials' wife in fleeing the U. S. reformatory at Chillicothe were charged with kidnaping today under the Lindbergh law.

Warrants issued by U. S. Commissioner Robert W. Newlon at the request of the FBI named Jack H. Triplett, 20, of Cromona, Ky., and Robert William Cote, 17, of Wilmantic, Conn. Newlon said the youths also were charged with escaping from a federal reformatory and taking stolen automobile across a state line.

Cote was captured in Ashland, Ky., Thursday night a few hours after the pair abducted Mrs. R. W. Meier, wife of the prison's chief clerk, at her home on the reformatory grounds. Triplett is still at large. Newlon asserted Cote probably would be arraigned in Kentucky.

Driven to Ashland by the youths, Mrs. Meier grabbed the steering wheel of the car, pulled it to the curb, and screamed for help. The youths fled. She was not harmed.

Cardinals' Race to Top of National League Parallels Braves' 1941 Climb

Red Birds Won 33, Lost 8 in 35-Day Drive To First Place.

By The Associated Press

The strangest pennant race of all time was in 1914 when the Boston Braves paraded from last to first and unique fame in a few weeks—but the St. Louis Cardinals will have accomplished a feat in some respects more difficult if they come home in front next week.

Almost everybody remembers that the Braves were last in mid-July that year and that they spurted to the top. Most people have forgotten the details.

Actually it was one of the tightest races from top to bottom in major league history and even though the Braves were in last place on July 15, when they started to spurt, they were only 11½ games from the lead.

Need Seven Wins

It was a battle royal with every club trampling on every other club and Boston made its climb to the top by winning 35 games and losing ten between July 18 and Sept. 8.

This year the Cardinals were 10 games off the pace as late as Aug. 5, even though they were in second place. And when they made their move they delivered the most punishing blows themselves with a minimum of help from the other clubs.

Between Aug. 5 and Sept. 13, when they took over first place exclusively, the Cardinals captured 33 games and lost eight. They have won four more without an interruption since then and have earned themselves a lead of three full games.

To make their achievement complete, of course, they must keep on till they win the pennant. They have eight more games to play—today and tomorrow at Chicago and two each at home next week against the Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds.

If the Red Birds win seven out of these eight, they can clinch the pennant.

Reds Smack Pirates

And inasmuch as the Dodgers have shown no signs of being able to win 10 straight — even though seven are with the Phils, two with the Boston Braves and one with the New York Giants—the Cardinals may find it necessary to nail only five or six.

Both teams were idle yesterday—the Cardinals having a day off and the Dodgers running into inclement weather.

Today St. Louis planned to send Mort Cooper against his former teammate, Lon Warneke, and the Dodgers boosted Curt Davis opposite Rube Melton.

Only one other major league contest was on yesterday's program and in it the Cincinnati Reds smashed the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 with a four-run rally in the ninth inning.

John Vander Meer, pitching four-hit ball for his 17th success, was given a tidy battle by Jack Hallett, rookie strikeout king just up from the International league, but in the final frame Lonnie Frey and Max Marshall each hit doubles with the bases loaded for two pairs of runs.

Said to be four times as rapid as any process heretofore used, a new quick freezing method for retaining freshness and flavors in foods has been developed at the University of Texas.

Red Birds Defeat Mud Hens, 9 to 0, in Playoff Opener

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept 18—Two of the American association's best southpaw twirlers — Harry Brecheen and Archie McKain—will face each other tonight as Columbus and Toledo meet in the second game of the Governor's cup final playoff series.

Brecheen, whose teammates beat Toledo 9 to 0 in the opener last night, won 18 games and lost 10 in the regular season and led the league with 151 strikeouts. The Mud Hens' McKain won 17 and lost 11.

A victory by the Mud Hens tonight would mean a capacity crowd when the teams move to Toledo Sunday afternoon, reports from that city indicated. The customers at the initial contest here totaled 3,505.

Bill Crouch hurled his best game of the season, holding the Mud Hens to four hits—three of them by Lin Storti—while his colleagues battered John Marcum for 14 before Fred Sanford went to the Toledo mound in the eighth inning.

A home run by Eddie Lukon after Jim Gleeson doubled gave Crouch a two-run advantage in the first. A double by Harry Davis and single by Lukon added another run in the sixth.

In the eighth the Red Birds stormed Marcum for six hits and as many runs. The damage was done by singles by Gleeson, John Antonelli, Lou Klein, Tommy Heath and Crouch plus Davis' second double and errors by Marcum and Robert Dillinger.

MARION HAWKS PLAY ALLEN MILKS SUNDAY

Locals Finish Third in Ohio State League.

In what promises to be the best baseball game here this season, the Marion Hawks of the Ohio State semi-pro league will entertain the Allen Milks of Columbus Sunday at 3 p. m. at Lincoln park.

In 16 games this season, the Columbus team has won 13. The Hawks finished in third place in the Ohio State league with a record of 12 wins in 16 starts. Either Joe Roseberry or John Edington will be the Hawks' starting pitcher. Joe Darnell will handle the catching duties.

Roseberry, who broke into organized baseball early this spring with the Washington, Pa., Red Birds of the Pennsylvania State association, has been the Hawks outstanding hurler this year.

Here is the official Ohio State league standings as announced recently by Charles LeCrone of Tiffin, league president:

N. C. O. GRID TEAMS OPEN PLAY; ASHLAND WHIPS WILLARD, 12-0

Galion, Bucyrus, Shelby Lose Openers; Redmen Tie Tiffin.

Marion Harding, defending North Central Ohio conference champion, was the only league team which failed to open its 1942 season last night. The Presidents will play host to Columbus West next Friday night at Harding stadium in the inaugural contest.

Ashland's powerful Hilltoppers, tagged as Harding's chief opposition for the league title this year, won its opener, 12-0, from a strong Willard eleven.

The Bucyrus Redmen were held to a 0-0 tie by Tiffin Columbia last night. Each team threatened only once during the entire contest.

A 14-yard pass in the final minute of the first half placed Tiffin on the Bucyrus six-yard line. Two plays failed to net Tiffin a score before the half ended.

Bucyrus pushed to within Tiffin's 15-yard line in the third quarter but three forward passes were incomplete and the drive ended.

The Galion Orangemen dropped a 19-0 decision to Tiffin Calvert, while Mt. Vernon Yellow Jackets, both teams given only an outside chance to cop the league championship, was losing to the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphanage Cadets, 31-0, at Mt. Vernon. The win extended the Cadet's victory string to 19 straight games. The Cadets scored twice in the first and fourth periods and once each in the third quarters.

In the only other game the Shelby Whippets lost to Norwalk, 27-0. According to reports this morning from Shelby, this year's Whippet squad is exceptionally green but Coach Tommy Bender expects improved play in the next couple of games.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 — That $135,000 plus that Joe Louis and Billy Conn will be allowed to extract from the championship fight to pay their private debts is only about a quarter of what they'd be paid if they were civilians fighting for the usual 40-20 cuts....Still, a lot of folks will be wondering why they're getting even that much after the original announcement that nobody would make a cent out of the scrap ....We can imagine the howls that will go up from people who objected to suggestions that Joe be allowed enough to pay his income tax debt to Uncle Sam when they hear he's paying almost as much to Mike Jacobs and John Roxborough....And how about the opinion of Pvt. Gus Glutz, who would like to pay off a $40 grocery bill? Nearly as we can figure it now, the army emergency relief will collect about half the estimated $1,200,000 receipts. If the fans will kick in that much... That ain't exactly hay, but neither is $135,000.

Service Dept. — Add Appeals: Irving Jaffee, former Olympic skater who is in charge of the athletic program at the coast guard's Curtis Bay, Md., training station, reports a bad shortage of footballs, basketballs, and especially horse shoes....Seems barnyard golf is a favorite pastime there.... Joe Bach is finding that coaching the Fort Knox, Ky., grid team isn't all beer and skittles. Besides the ordinary troubles, he's been harassed by transfers and furlough with Ohio State coming up next week....Louis (Soupy) Campbell, former intercollegiate boxing champion from Southwestern Louisiana institute, sounds like a guy who ought to make good in the marines. He's fighting Corp. Burrow Wood of Fort McClellan, Ala., on the Tommy Gomez-Tommy Tucker Army-Navy card at Jacksonville, Fla., Monday and at the same time is bidding for a place on the Jacksonville naval air station football team ....Whether it's football or fighting," Soupy explains, "I like to get in there and sock."

1942 SOUTHERN CAL TEAM FAR CRY FROM JONES' GREAT CLUBS

New Coach Emphasizes Speed in Preparing for Eleven-Game Card.

This is one of a national series on 1942 prospects of major college football teams.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Sept 19—Any resemblance of the Southern California football team this fall to those of other seasons will be, as the movie captions say, purely coincidental.

The Trojans have a new head man, Newell (Jeff) Cravath, who last year was at the University of San Francisco. The Howard Jones football bible, in use 16 years, has been cast out without ceremony But there's method in this heresy.

Former S. C. Star

Cravath, who once played center on Jones' championship teams, has sized up his squad and found it runs to speed. So speed and a modicum of imagination will replace the bone-crushing tactics the Trojans of yore employed to subdue their adversaries. Jeff has convinced his men that his new deal will save a lot of wear and tear on life, limb and equipment, and they're for it.

The new Trojans aren't going to butt their brains out against anybody's stone wall, much less such imposing and unyielding forward barricades as those of California, Stanford, Notre Dame, the Navy's pre-flight school at St. Mary's and seven other teams on an 11-game schedule that opens here next Saturday against the Green Wave of Tulane.

Win or lose, the Trojans promise to give the fans a lot of excitement. It will be open football most of the way, with much passing and wide sweeps and less of the power play stuff that brought many a yawn in the cavernous Los Angeles coliseum. Troy's backfield will have speed burners anxious to go places in a hurry, and they will go if the line problem can be solved.

There's an acute tackle situation. The three who were being counted on are in the armed forces. There may be a shortage of speed at the ends, too, and that will have to be corrected, else S. C may have to score a lot of points to win football games.

Runs 100 In 9.6

Quarterback Bob Musick and right half Paul Taylor will handle the backfield blocking assignments and Mickey McCardle at left half and Jack Trout at full will do much of the ball carrying. Trout and McCardle really can run, the former having an accepted mark of 9.6 seconds in the century dash. Taylor, a southpaw, and McCardle, who tosses from the starboard side, will handle the forward passing assignments.

There are several fair to middlin' kickers available and one really good one, rangy left end Ralph Heywood.

The Trojans are going to do considerable traveling in the early part of the schedule and this, with the uncertainty of inexperienced sophomores, militates against championship hopes. But this new S. C. outfit will be a big factor in deciding the Pacific coast title. It will be in there pitching passes most of the time and a lot of 'em are bound to connect.

KENTON, Sept. 19—A crowd of 2,000 saw Kenton defeat Forest gridders, 12-0, under the lights in the first game of the season here last night.

Although Kenton won the game without serious difficulty, the entire crowd agreed that the "man of the evening" probably was Forest's talented left halfback, Buxton, a freshman who did most of the passing, kicking and ball carrying for Forest. Buxton helped push the ball to the six-inch line in the third quarter but the Kenton line held and the ball was lost on downs.

Kenton scores were made by Stober on a 30-yard end run and Naus on a 25-yard pass from Seaders. Kenton made its scores in the second and fourth quarters.

Kershner tallied again in the third quarter and Barlion again kicked the extra point. Although Crestline was within scoring distance repeatedly in the fourth quarter, the winners were unable to score.

GEORGIA-KENTUCKY CONTEST HEADLINES GRID BILL-OF-FARE

Sinkwich, Youngstown Star, Bids for National Honors.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—Frank Sinkwich, tough enough last year to gnaw on a New York vacation two weeks after suffering a broken jaw, starts his campaign today for a second straight year of recognition as an all American football back.

The University of Georgia halfback, once more sound, and a great A-1 supporting cast make up one of the favorites in the Southeastern conference and 14,000 persons are expected to see for themselves just how good the Bulldogs are today in their first clash with Kentucky at Louisville.

The game is the choice morsel of a gridiron bill o'fare that also lists numerous contests involving service teams.

A trio of soldier outfits, Camp Grant, Ill., Fort Riley, Kas., and Camp Pickett, Va., take on college opposition. Camp Grant invades the precincts of the University of Wisconsin, Fort Riley opposes Missouri, 1941 Big Six title holder, and Camp Pickett is at the University of Richmond.

St. Mary's Pre-Flight Naval eleven helps Amos Alonzo Stagg open his 53rd year as coach in a game with the College of the Pacific and the Iowa Seahawks, under Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman, test the University of Kansas sophomores.

The Jackson, Fla., air station team is carded against Florida and Texas, one of the better Southwest conference outfits, will try to ground the aviators from Corpus Christi.

In strictly collegiate circles the Georgia-Kentucky duel must concede some of the spotlight to the North Carolina State-Davidson, Clemson - Presbyterian, Indiana - Washington university and Virginia Tech-Catawba engagements.

Gossip Loses To Romance

"Orchestra Wives" Tells Story of Swing Band and Its Troubles.

George Montgomery, Ann Rutherford and Glenn Miller and his band in "Orchestra Wives," are now showing through Thursday at the Ohio theater.

Ann plays the part of a young swing musician who meets Montgomery, trumpeter, with a popular band, and after a whirlwind romance marries him and becomes the target for the gossip of the other wives of the band members. The gossip involves Montgomery with Lynn Bari, the singer with the band. For revenge, Ann makes trouble between one of the players and his wife and as a result the band breaks up. Montgomery, angered by her actions, leaves Ann. Seeing her mistake, Ann, with the help of Montgomery's best friend, Cesar Romero, sends fake telegrams to the boys and reunites the band. When Montgomery learns that it was through Anns efforts that the band was brought together again he falls in love with her all over again.

Errol Flynn is cast as a flight lieutenant in the RAF in "Desperate Journey," which will open Friday for a week's engagement. Cast as members of the crew of the Hudson bomber of which Flynn has command are Ronald Reagan, Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy and Ronald Sinclair. In order to bomb their objective more accurately, Flynn commands them to fly lower despite the fact that the section is known to have particularly heavy anti-aircraft protection. They start their return flight after successfully bombing their objective when they are brought down by a sharp burst of anti-aircraft fire. The adventures of these five men on their "Desperate Journey" across Germany, toward Holland and the coast furnishes the basis for the film.

IN "FANTASIA" COMING TO PALACE

Hyacinth Hippo and Ben Ali Gator are pictured in a scene from Walt Disney's Fantasia, showing at the Palace theater Thursday through Saturday.

'Fantasia' One of Highlights of Palace Bill for Week

To Start Thursday; Stage Band Sunday and "Lost Horizon" Also on Schedule.

A stage band, a return engagement of "Lost Horizon," and Walt Disney's "Fantasia" are among the feature attractions at the Palace theater for the week starting Sunday.

Al Donahue and his band will appear in person Sunday on the stage. He will present his "Low Down 'n then in a Top Hat" featuring Snooky Lanson and Patti Farnsworth as vocalists. On the screen will be Eddie Bracken, June Preisser and Betty Jane Rhodes in "Sweater Girl." The film is filled with coeds, comedy songs and dances, and a mystery which begins with the slaying of the campus columnist during rehearsals for a college show.

"Lost Horizon"

Monday and Tuesday Ronald Colman and Jane Wyatt in "Lost Horizon" will return for another engagement. The story begins when Ronald Colman and a group of people are kidnapped from a war-torn world and taken deep into Tibet to a hidden lamasery called Shangri-La, a place of indescribable beauty and serenity. Here Colman is told by the ruler that he has been appointed to rule Shangri-La for he is about to die at the age of 200 years. He further explains that when the outer world destroys itself in the war, the people of Shangri-La shall inherit the earth with their culture. Then the ruler dies. Colman meets Miss Wyatt and is willing to stay, but his brother refuses and rather than let him go alone, Colman goes with him. They take with them an apparently young girl, but outside the influence of the land of long life she turns old and dies. Colman alone reaches civilization sick in mind and body. As soon as he recovers, he starts fighting his way back to Shangri-La and Miss Wyatt. In the end he reaches his "Lost Horizon."

Wednesday Feature

Lupe Velez and Leon Errol are starred in "Mexican Spitfire Elephant," playing Wednesday. Lupe tangles with a desperate jewel smuggler and Leon Errol falls into the clutches of the crook's blonde accomplice. An immensely valuable diamond, hidden inside a small onyx elephant, is brought into the country by Errol, the innocent tool of a pair of clever smugglers. The gem is finally recovered and the crook taken to jail.

Walt Disney's "Fantasia" with Deems Taylor as master of ceremonies. The musical accompaniment of the film is played by the Philadelphia symphony orchestra conducted by Leopold Stokowski and contains many of the classics and Irene Manning. The story deals with fifth column sabotage in the United States.

Tuesday and Wednesday Jeffrey Lynn and Philip Dorn are starred in "Underground," the story of courageous and fearless young men and women who operate the forbidden short wave radio against Nazism in Germany. Featured with Lynn and Dorn are Kaaren Verne, Mona Maris and Martin Kosleck.

Completing the double bill is "Keep 'Em Laughing" with Jack Benny. It is a combination of mirth, melody and mystery featuring Nancy Kelly and Gene Raymond with Mitzi Green, Patsy Kelly and Frank Parker in supporting roles.

Appearing Thursday through Saturday will be Gene Autry in "Call of the Canyon." It involves a ring of racketeers outsmarted by Autry and his friends Smiley Bernette and Ruth Terry have the leading supporting roles.

"Secret Agent of Japan" also starting Thursday stars Preston Foster and Lynn Bari in a story of undercover activities of Japanese agents just before the attack on Pearl Harbor. Included in the cast are Noel Madison, Sen Yung, Janis Carter and Stella Geray.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Medical Science

The annual meeting of the American Medical Association is for most doctors in North America the greatest post-graduate educational opportunity of the year. The lecture sessions in every branch and specialty of medicine present papers which represent the newest discoveries and investigations. A new section was added this year on General Practice which as a healthy sign of the times, when laymen are nearly every day asking why they can't get a good family doctor, to which they can turn over all their medical problems.

The exhibits of manufacturers of drugs, instruments, foods, books, publishers of medical books fill at least 12 large floors of the exhibition hall. North American provide round tables and lectures on the doctor to renovate his equipment and keep up with the times.

But the special educational feature of the meeting, the scientific exhibit, has grown during the last few years until it is really first in educational value.

These exhibits, entirely non-commercial in character, are set up by private doctors to show the work they have been doing in their home town hospitals, clinics or laboratory. By actual demonstrations or photographs in many cases beautiful and elaborate drawings, and small motion picture exhibits the new ideas are shown in a succession of booths like a giant county fair, on the basis that one look at an actual demonstration is worth more than 1,000 words read from any manuscript.

A doctor hears of some treatment given in a far away city he would like to see it for himself. But he hears of five or six of these during the year; and when he gets to the American Medical Association meeting he finds that they all have been brought together under one roof. The demonstrators are physicians in private practice who have developed the method and have pledged themselves to stay in their booth at the exhibition hall every hour it is open and explain all the details to the doctor.

Most of these lectures and exhibits are too technical to attempt to recount for a lay audience. Some of general interest at the 1942 session were:

The Ballistograph—a sort of bed table, very finely balanced and sensitive which records the pulsations of the heart. The old doctor of the last century used to have a trick of diagnosing a certain kind of valvular disease of the heart by the rhythmic shaking of the patient's bed. The ballistograph makes a record of this nature which has been scientifically analyzed.

As the blood is pumped headward by the heart the whole body is jolted just as from the kick of a gun. Not only heart disease of various kinds, but the effect of exercise, drug action, fever, blood transfusion, etc. can be recorded.

Dissolving kidney stones without operation is a still persistent hope of patients. A method of doing this developed in Boston was shown. But unfortunately for the hope of patients it cannot be taken by mouth, but is injected by instrumentation into the kidney pelvis.

Immersion foot is one of the diseases developed in this way, as trench mouth and trench kidney developed in the last. It is the result of long exposure to cold, damp and water while adrift at sea in open boats. Immersion foot is similar to frost bite, in that lack of movement, along with cold, constricts the blood vessels of the legs.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

V.V.A.—Does spitting up blood necessarily mean tuberculosis? I had my lungs x-rayed a year ago and there was no sign since then. I've had a baby and have been very run down.

Answer: Spitting of blood means tuberculosis in 98 per cent of cases. It may be an early sign. Pregnancy activates an early tuberculosis.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

AT LILLIAN'S outburst of hysterics over her husband Madge had risen, put her arm around her and carried her into the next room.

"Come in here, Madge," he ordered. "Lillian, don't make what you do with it get any worse. Pull up quickly, as Miss Wilson can come in."

Kneeling by the couch, he said quietly, "I followed Harry to Marion. I saw him meet Miss Wilson at the depot and heard her before she stopped."

At last a sudden silence. I guarded my arms for battle for I knew her resourcefulness, her intuition and her ability to make blame look white when she was playing a part.

I was fairly sure Harry would be adamant to her pleas because of Dicky's warning, yet I felt it would be imprudent to leave any loophole unguarded.

But a few minutes later Lillian raised her head and looked at me with such a look of hostility toward me as I never had seen in her face.

"If it will not inconvenience you, Madge," he said coldly, "would you mind going somewhere while I talk to Harry?"

The open insolence in her voice would have driven me out instantly if I had not known that her emotions had overpowered her.

Her husbands' shocked remonstrance heartened me.

"Lillian, Sweet!" he exclaimed. "Why are you talking like that to Madge? You know how hard she has tried to get any news of Marion."

"I know," she said, "and I beg your pardon, Madge, for my rudeness. But," her voice quavered and she was near to tears again, "you are so cruel to Carolyn, when all she wants is to find out about Marion."

"And I do really want to talk to Harry by myself. You understand that."

Her eyes were no longer hostile, but they held inexorable determination.

"Darling girl," I said, 'of course you'd rather talk alone with your husband. I understand and I made my visit as impressive as I could—there are things my future has suddenly to do with about Marion, that I can't explain now. He insists on you knowing them at once, and I have to get back to the hospital promptly, as my father has work for me to do there.

"You mean, some organization with ties reaches for Marion?" she said quickly.

"Yes, darling. I presume that means the Chief is uniting in running down every clue."

A flash of indignation came into her face.

"And yet you will believe nothing when Carolyn is trying to tell him!" she said.

I MISSED HIM AGAIN
COME TO BED, DEAD, YOU CAN'T CATCH THAT MOSQUITO
I CAN'T SLEEP! MY PRIDE IS HURT!
IT'S HARD FOR A MAN TO HAVE TO ADMIT THAT A MOSQUITO IS SMARTER THAN HE IS!!

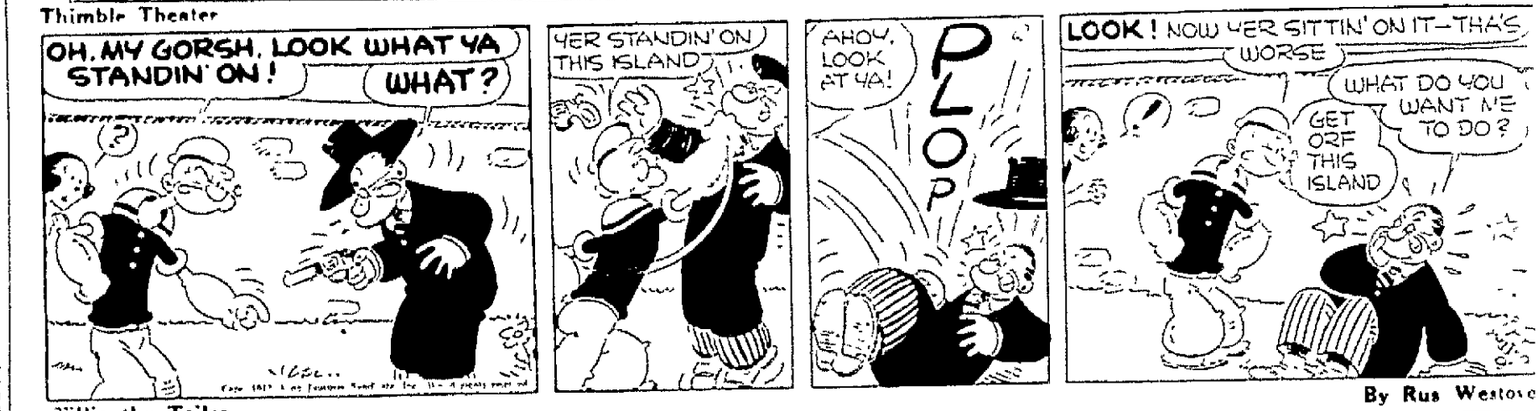
Flash Gordon — By Lyman Young

OH, MY POOR DARLING!
FLASH FORCES HIS WAY INTO THE WRECKED ROCKET-SHIP—AND TO HIS UTTER RELIEF HE FINDS DALE STILL ALIVE, BUT SHAKEN—
WHY, IT'S YOUR LITTLE FRIEND. WHAT A PITY— BUT WE FORESTIANS ALWAYS SHOOT AT ANYTHING THAT FLIES OVER OUR COUNTRY
YOU SHOT HER DOWN DE-LIBERATELY, YOU JEALOUS TIGER-CAT!
WATCH YOUR TONGUE, FLASH, WHO ARE YOU TO QUESTION THE QUEEN? REMEMBER, YOU ARE ALONE IN MY COUNTRY
BY AN UTMOST EFFORT OF WILL, FLASH SAYS NOTHING. HE KNOWS HE MUST KEEP FROM AN OPEN BREAK WITH THE FIERCE TIGRA, WHILE DALE IS HELPLESS AND IN HER POWER
THE FOREST PALACE

Tim Tyler — By Lyman Young

YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU DELIBERATELY DOCTORED MAJOR-GENERAL GARRISON'S WRIST WATCH, SO HE'D BE INJECTED WITH TYPHOID GERMS ABOARD A PACKED TROOP TRAIN, DR. GROPE?
CLEVER, WASN'T IT? WHAT A PITY OVER 2000 YOUNG SOLDIERS MUST FALL VICTIMS TO THAT CONTAGEOUS MALADY, WHILE ENROUTE TO THE BATTLE FRONT!
TIM! IT'LL BE FIVE O'CLOCK IN LESS THAN AN HOUR! WE'VE GOT TO WARN THE NEAREST STATION AGENT IN TIME TO STOP THAT TRAIN!
IMPOSSIBLE! TRIXIE—WE CAN'T IN OUR TRUCK
SUFFERING SWAN DIVES! IT'S THE MYSTERIOUS HELICOPTER BELONGING TO THE OCTOPUS!
LOOK! A PLANE! DROPPING DOWN FOR A LANDING IN THIS FIELD!

Thimble Theater — By Rus Westover

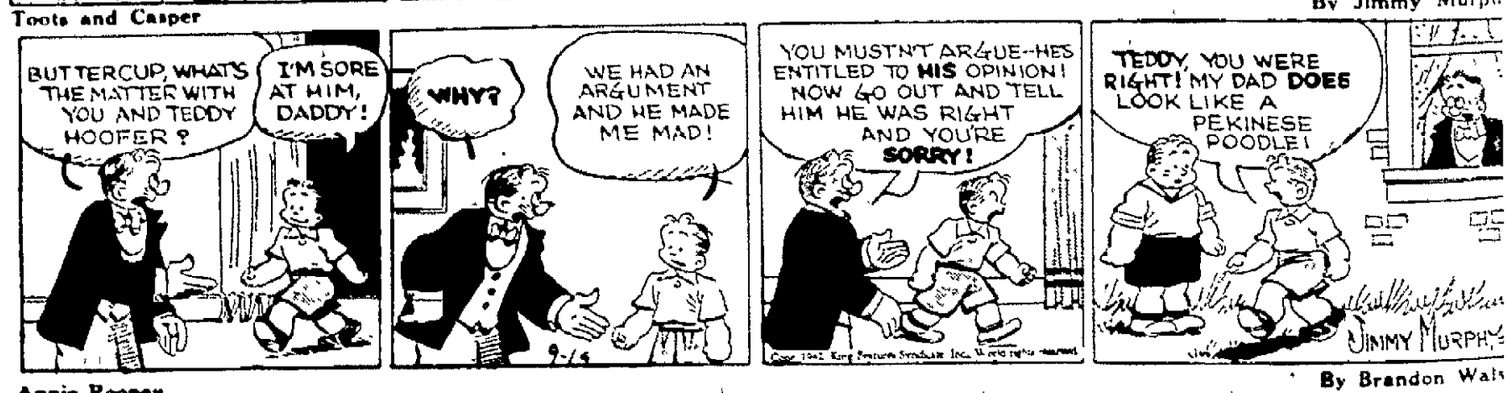


OH, MY GORSH, LOOK WHAT YA STANDIN' ON!
WHAT?
YER STANDIN' ON THIS ISLAND
AHOY, LOOK AT YA!
PLOP
LOOK! NOW YER SITTIN' ON IT—THAT'S WORSE
WHAT DO YOU WANT ME TO DO?
GET ORF THIS ISLAND

Tillie the Toiler — By Jimmy Murphy

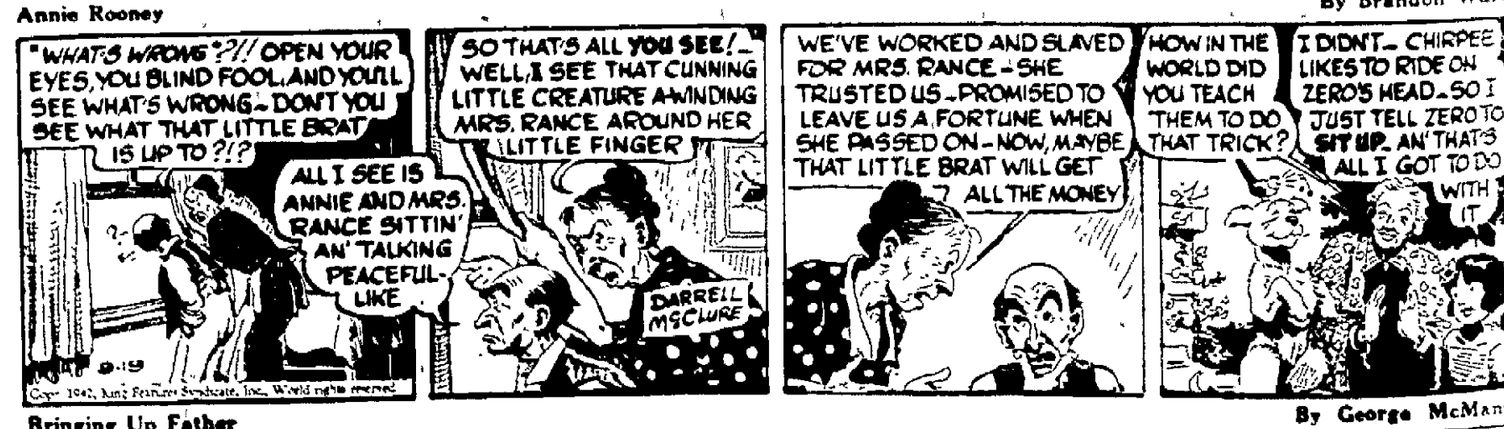
I WAS ONLY KIDDING YOU, MISS JONES—THE SERGEANT IS A GOOD SOLDIER AND HE'LL BE A LIEUTENANT YET
I'M SURE OF IT
YOU JUST WORK HARD AND YOU'LL HAVE ME PULLING FOR YOU
AND THINK HOW PROUD YOU'LL BE WHEN YOU'VE SOMETHING ON YOUR SHOULDER
YOU WERE RIGHT, TILLIE—I'VE GOT SOMETHING ON IT AND I'M SURE PROUD

Toots and Casper — By Jimmy Murphy



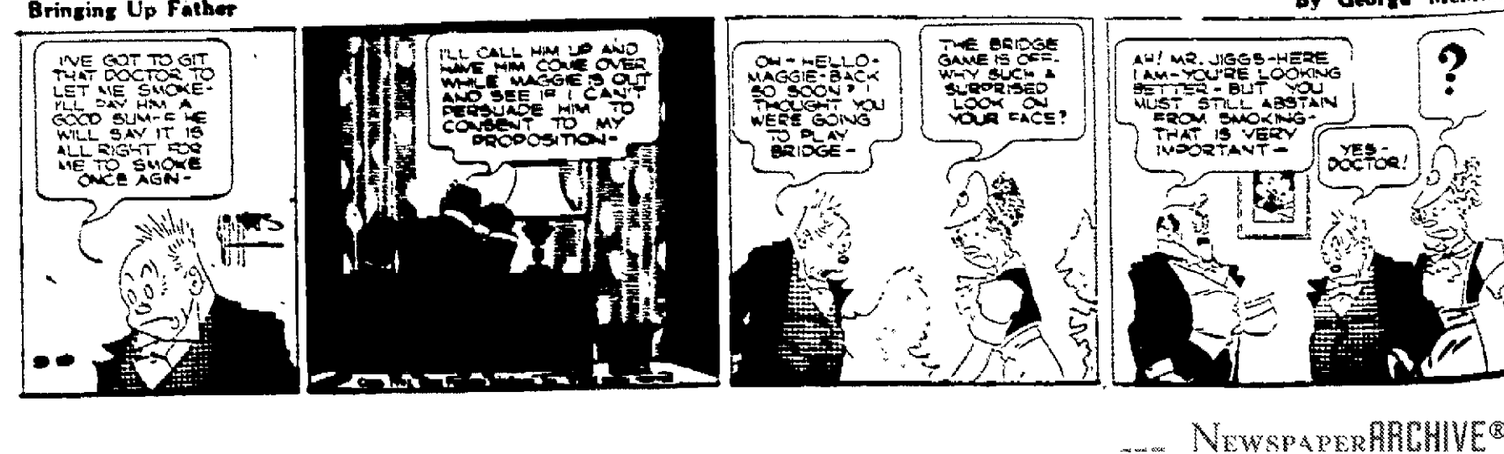
BUTTERCUP, WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH YOU AND TEDDY HOOFER?
I'M SORE AT HIM, DADDY!
WHY?
WE HAD AN ARGUMENT AND HE MADE ME MAD!
YOU MUSTN'T ARGUE—HE'S ENTITLED TO HIS OPINION! NOW GO OUT AND TELL HIM HE WAS RIGHT AND YOU'RE SORRY!
TEDDY, YOU WERE RIGHT! MY DAD DOES LOOK LIKE A PEKINESE POODLE!

Annie Rooney — By Brandon Walsh



"WHAT'S WRONG"?!! OPEN YOUR EYES, YOU BLIND FOOL, AND YOU'LL SEE WHAT'S WRONG—DON'T YOU SEE WHAT THAT LITTLE BRAT IS UP TO?!?
ALL I SEE IS ANNIE AND MRS. RANCE SITTIN' AN' TALKING PEACEFUL-LIKE
SO THAT'S ALL YOU SEE!— WELL, I SEE THAT CUNNING LITTLE CREATURE A-WINDING MRS. RANCE AROUND HER LITTLE FINGER
DARRELL McCLURE
WE'VE WORKED AND SLAVED FOR MRS. RANCE—SHE TRUSTED US—PROMISED TO LEAVE US A FORTUNE WHEN SHE PASSED ON—NOW, MAYBE THAT LITTLE BRAT WILL GET ALL THE MONEY
HOW IN THE WORLD DID YOU TEACH THEM TO DO THAT TRICK?
I DIDN'T— CHIRPEE LIKES TO RIDE ON ZERO'S HEAD—SO I JUST TELL ZERO TO SIT UP— AN' THAT'S ALL I GOT TO DO WITH IT

Bringing Up Father — By George McManus



I'VE GOT TO GIT THAT DOCTOR TO LET ME SMOKE— I'LL PAY HIM A GOOD SUM—& HE WILL SAY IT IS ALL RIGHT FOR ME TO SMOKE ONCE AGN—
I'LL CALL HIM UP AND HAVE HIM COME OVER WHILE MAGGIE IS OUT AND SEE IF I CAN'T PERSUADE HIM TO CONSENT TO MY PROPOSITION—
OH—HELLO MAGGIE—BACK SO SOON? I THOUGHT YOU WERE GOING TO PLAY BRIDGE—
THE BRIDGE GAME IS OFF—WHY SUCH A SURPRISED LOOK ON YOUR FACE?
AH! MR. JIGGS—HERE I AM—YOU'RE LOOKING BETTER—BUT YOU MUST STILL ABSTAIN FROM SMOKING—THAT IS VERY IMPORTANT—
YES—DOCTOR!
